'KILLED WRONG MAN,' CRIES WIFE

Today

Lincoln's Day, Tomorrow.
The Conscience of Italy.
A Queer Politician.
Beet or Cane Sugar.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

TOMORROW, Lincoln's Birthday, children should be told about the nation's noblest man. Washington created the nation, Lincoln preserved it. Tell children that, let them decide which was more important.

TELL them that Indians lived all around Lincoln's boyhood home. His grandfather was shot dead by an Indian, in Kentucky. That will interest your small boy. Lincoln was influenced by four books. His mother, who died when he was 11, taught him to read the Bible and the life of Washington.

THE other two books were Pilgrim's Progress and Plutarch's Lives.

The Bible gave him a sound foundation. He quoted Bible texts often. Washington inspired him with ambition. He was guided by his teachings.

BUNYAN'S writings developed Lincoln's use of English, impressing on him the value of short English words.

Plutarch's Lives took him out of his narrow surroundings, in Indiana, to the great world and its men of long ago.

WITH nothing more than the Bible, Bunyan, Plutarch, the Life of Washington, the alphabet and the multiplication table, a man might have an adequate education—if he added common sense, ambition and a desire to be useful to his book knowledge.

IN every house there should be a portrait of Lincoln, and children taught to love that noble, rugged face.

Some public spirited citizen, George Eastman, or W. R. Hearst, or Rockefeller, should prepare a talking movie picture of Lincoln's life, for free use in public schools, and elsewhere.

THE agreement with Mussolini's government, restoring to the pope a limited temporal power, and paying more than a hundred million dollars by way of damages, has not yet been published in Italy.

Remnants of a violently anti-clerical party are there, but it was thought Mussolini had subdued opposition sufficiently to make any announcement safe.

SPEAKING for the Catholic Church, a priest in New York welcomes the agreement between the Vatican and Italy's government, because it sets free the consciences of many Italians. They had been unable to take the oath of loyalty to their nation's government as long as the pope's claims were unsatisfied.

Now they can swear allegiance to Italy at elections, or at any time.

IN New York, Mr. Harvey, head of Queens Borough, chooses to be eccentric, and refuses a bribe of $200,000. He had only to close his eyes, take the money "with plenty more to come," and let the sewer contractors continue robbing the public.

THERE is, however, nothing eccentric about the Republican boss of Queens. He repudiates Harvey, wants nothing more to do with him, reads him out of the sacred Republican ranks.

What is the use of electing a man, if he turns around and cuts off the graft supply? That's worse than any serpent's tooth.

IRELAND has been growing sugar beets, profitably, selling them to a Belgian plant in Ireland. The Belgian capitalists now cut the price paid the Irish farmer from $13 to $11 a ton.

THE farmers struck, and say they will plant grass, inasmuch as the factory gets a subsidy of $15 a ton from Ireland's government, four dollars more than the farmers get for growing the crop.

IF HERBERT HOOVER had as simple a farm problem as that, he would be happy. The development of power in the Shannon would make a government factory simple, and might teach better arithmetic to the foreign capitalists who have been making 25 per cent a year on their investment.

WHICH, by the way, is better for human nourishment, beet or cane sugar? Some allege that cane sugar is better, because the cane grows in sunlight, the beet root under ground.

Louisiana, Cuba, Spreckels or Babast ought to make scientific experiments with groups of rats, giving cane sugar to some, beet sugar to others, and announce the results.

THE Journal of the American Medical Association shows that length of life depends to a great extent on diet. Dairy farmers will be glad to hear that rats, fed a little more milk than other rats, lived 10 per cent longer.

HOWEVER, heredity is the main thing in life's duration, and insurance companies know it. If your great grandmother lived to be a hundred, that helps. If your father and mother both lived beyond eighty, you may be foolish, and still live long.

SHOT down by a squad of policemen, the Mexican, Toral, who murdered President-elect Obregon, tried to shout "Long live Christ the King," rallying cry of pious Mexicans. He was dead before he could get farther than "Viva."

HE DIED doubtless, as did Ravaillac, murderer of Henry IV, convinced that he would go from the spot of execution, straight to heaven. That belief, shared by all Mohammed's soldiers, makes troops or individuals dangerous enemies.

DE RIVERA puts an end to free speech in Spain.

The czars did that in Russia, and did not last. However, nations submit sometimes for a long

15 MILLION FUND FOR SCHOOLS

A $14,756,650 school building program was announced today by President Marcus Aaron, of the Board of Public Education.

The program is the result of a survey conducted under the direction of Charles L. Wooldridge, former superintendent of school buildings.

The working out of the scores of projects involved is in the hands of a committee consisting of Superintendent William M. Davidson, James Bonar, superintendent of buildings, and C. M. McKee, superintendent of supplies. Allegheny High School, cause of much recent controversy, is not named in the report, but will be discussed at the next meeting of the board.

NEW BUILDINGS

The plan calls for many new buildings, reconstruction of others, numerous additions to buildings and reassignment of pupils that will result in the abandonment of schools in districts from which population has shifted.

A survey of the school needs of Pittsburgh, both with respect to dwindling centers of population and centers in which the population is increasing, was carried on by Mr. Wooldridge. The report assumes an average expenditure of a little less than $1,500,000 per year, with the first two years loaded slightly above this figure on account of pressing enrollment needs. It is suggested that the program be extended over a period of 10 years.

THIS YEAR'S PLANS

In the program for this year has been included the Madison and Fulton Elementary schools and the

HOOVER TO SEE PROSPERITY, EDISON SAYS

FORT MYERS, Fla., Feb. 11.—(AP.)—Thomas A. Edison, celebrating his eighty-second birthday here, believes that the administration of President-elect Herbert Hoover will result in greater prosperity to the nation. He gave an affirmative answer to this, the first question of the list submitted for his written answers in his annual birthday interview.

Other questions submitted to Edison, and his answers were:

Q.—What are the dangers, if any, of the increasing stock speculation?

A.—Ultimate panic, loss of confidence.

Q.—Have you ever given any thought to the chemical development of synthetic rubber?

A.—No. It has no future when rubber is quoted at 23 cents per pound.

Q.—Will the manufacture ever be extended to the point where it will be used for the pavement and road service?

BOARD HIT IN ACTION ON LOANS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—(INS.)—The Senate today adopted the Heflin resolution calling on the Federal Reserve Board to suggest a legislative remedy to curb speculative gambling on the New York stock market.

The board also was called upon, in effect, to explain its recent action in issuing a statement against speculative loans.

The resolution was adopted by unanimous vote after an interesting debate in which speculative loans were denounced. It was pointed out that gambling on the New York exchange has tied up $7,000,000,000 with harmful effects on agriculture and legitimate industry.

AMENDS RESOLUTION

The resolution, sponsored by Senator Heflin (Dem.), of Alabama, was amended by the author. Originally it asked the board for its reason in "increasing the rediscount rate." This action occurred early last year, so Heflin struck it from the resolution before its adoption.

Senator Carter Glass (Dem.), of Virginia, former secretary of the treasury, who blocked action on the resolution last year, declared the Federal Reserve Board had acted tardily in seeking to reduce speculative loans.

ACTED TOO LATE

He declared if the board had acted last summer there would be no shortage of indutrial loans today.

Senator Brookhart, (R.) of Iowa, stated the speculative loan situation was a menace to all legitimate business. He said Congress could control the situation through its powers to regulate the mails in interstate commerce.

Having adopted the Heflin resolution, the Senate ignored the La Follette resolution, introduced last May, which would have ordered the board to take steps toward reducing speculative loans.

COAL-IRON POLICEMEN GRILLED IN SLAYING

BULLETIN.

Coal and Iron Policemen H. P. Watts and Frank Slapkas were committeed to jail under charges of murder by Chief Deputy Coroner Harry T. Ewing today in the killing of John Borkoski.

Two iron and coal policemen accused of beating John Borkoski, miner, to death after a fight at Tyre, "got the wrong man," Borkoski's widow declared today.

The policemen, H. P. Watts and Frank Slapkas, employed by the Pittsburgh Coal Company, were questioned by Coroner W. J. MacGregor today after they had been grilled an hour by county detectives.

STAYED TO DRINK

Detectives were told the policemen had gone to raid the coal company house of Mrs. Mary Blussick at Tyre, bought a pint of moonshine, and found the moonshine fair, and had stayed to drink with the occupants.

Then a fight began, and Mrs. Blussick had to look on while her son-in-law, Borkoski, was beaten, kicked and stabbed to death.

She was with her son-in-law's widow and four children in their home at Santiago today, wondering, like they, where the family's food was coming from in the future, and marveling at law enforcement in Pennsylvania.

"GOT WRONG MAN!"

"What did they do with my husband from 2:30 Sunday morning when they took him away from my mother's house until 6 o'clock when he was admitted at the Sewickley Hospital?" Mrs. Borkoski, sobbing, inquired.

"They got the wrong man in the first place. John didn't carry a knife and he only tried to break up the argument those drunken coal and iron police started. After slugging him with guns and blackpacks, they broke down the door to my mother's home to get to him and beat him to insensibility.

"BEAT HIM IN BARRACKS"

"They took him to their barracks at Imperial, where I went to get him yesterday morning. The police wouldn't let me in, but when they opened the door I saw them mopping up evidence of the terrible beating they gave my husband.

"Instead of taking him to the hospital," Mrs. Borkoski shuddered. "They beat him to death in their barracks."

W. R. Higgins, a companion of Borkoski's, is held in Leetsdale

Cornelius VANDERBILT, Jr. says:

Eight years ago when I was first married there were seventy other young persons of my personal acquaintance, married, during the spring and winter social season. Within four years 39 divorces took place; and while I was in Reno 22 of the others came there also. So that there are but 9 of these families still living as man and wife. And of these 9 there are to my distinct knowledge only 2 who are not having what society call "affairs" with other persons on the side.

BROWN DID BANKING 'FIXES' AT NIGHT, WITNESS TELLS

Oft in the stilly night, Guy W. Brown visited the Fayette City National Bank, put in notes, and took out credit slips, David R. Barnum, former cashier of that bank, told a jury in Federal court today in the trial for embezzlement of the Fayette county politician, banker and churchman.

VATICAN, ITALY MAKE PEACE

ROME, Feb. 11.—(AP.)—After 60 years of estrangement, peace was formally established today between the Holy See and the Italian government, marking one of the most momentous chapters in the modern history of the church and state.

Representing the Vatican and the Italian government respectively, Cardinal Gasparri, famous papal secretary of state, and Premier Mussolini, creator of the Fascist state in Italy, placed their signatures upon three historical documents, one a treaty solving and eliminating the "Roman question" which has existed ever since the loss of temporal power in 1870 and the second a concordat designed to regulate the relations of the church and state in Italy, and third a convention settling the financial relations between the Holy See and Italy.

The text of these documents was not made public since it must still be represented for discussion to the legislative assembly, but it was announced that an exhaustive and precise synopsis would be given out tomorrow, which is the anniversary of the coronation of Pope Pius.

It is known that the first "treaty" recognizes the absolute independence and sovereignty of the Pontiff, at the same time slightly rectifying the boundaries of the Vatican without any great increase in its actual area.

CONCORDAT IMPORTANT

The concordat, regarded in some quarters as of even greater importance, concerns the relations between Italy and the Holy See. It is understood to provide for the acceptance of canon law by the state, thus introducing the church attitude on such questions as marriage and divorce into the civil code.

The agreement also provides for an indemnity which the Italian government will pay the Vatican. At first the indemnity was placed at 2,000,000,000 lire (about $105,000,000) but this was reduced to 1,750,000,000 lire of which 750,000,000 (about $39,375,000) will be paid in cash and the remainder in government bonds. The total amount is about $87,500,000.

The signing of the documents took place in the famous council hall of the Lateran palace. It was the first time that Premier Mussolini had ever entered the historic structure.

police station, having been taken into custody after the fight by Constable Ross Schaffer, of Justice of the Peace Margaret Morgan's office. He is said to have had a knife during the fight.

Watts and Slapikas, according to their story to county authorities, went to the Blussick home to purchase moonshine and conduct a raid, but Borkoski and Higgins, they say, started a fight in which Borkoski is alleged to have drawn a knife. Watts says he subdued Borkoski with the butt of his revolver.

FACE SLASHED

A.—Yes.

Q.—Should the United States try to have the most powerful navy in the world?

Q.—Have recent developments in aviation changed your opinion of air travel never becoming as popular as auto travel?

A.—No. Opinion not changed.

A.—When a boy around 15 or 16 is found trying all kinds of experiments, he shows ambition and the will to work. This boy is safe for a good career.

A.—Capacity for leadership is born in a man.

Q.—Please give briefly your formula for a happy life?

A.—I am not acquainted with anyone who is happy.

Q.—Are you planning to go fishing with Mr. Hoover while he is in Fort Myers?

A.—No.

Q.—With the experience of yourself, Mr. Hoover and Mr. Ford in mind, do you believe golf, tennis and other forms of physical exercise advisable for the assurance of health, usefulness and longevity.

A.—No.

10-YEAR SCHOOL BUILDING PROGRAM

Baxter Junior High, all of which have been authorized by the board and an addition to Allderdice High is recommended because, according to the report, it "will be desperately needed long before it can be completed." The Wooldridge report also urges immediate authorization of a Lemington school project.

The survey sets aside next year exclusively to the expansion of the junior high schools of which, it is stated, the addition to the Knoxville High School "is probably the most vitally important."

The need of a new Junior High School on the South Side is predicted for 1931. The erection of a new elementary building in the Hazelwood district would make room for further extension of the Junior High School in the Gladstone Building, the report states, and additions to two elementary schools, the Friendship and Roosevelt, are in the interest of raising the education efficiency ratings.

BETTER GRADE SCHOOLS

The new building suggested for 1932 to replace the Schiller School, the report states, marks the first serious attempt to make a sweeping correction of very bad existing elementary school housing. The suggested program for that year also includes a new junior high school in the West End and the expansion of the junior high school program in the Liberty and Sterrett schools.

"It will take all of the above four years to get the junior high school situation fully straightened out," says Wooldridge, "which makes it possible to remedy the low educational efficiency ratings in very many buildings."

It is pointed out that it is inevitable that the suggested order of the suggested improvements will have to be changed from time to time as the educational needs vary.

The complete elimination of numerous schools is suggested because of shifting population, with modern schools replacing those where several exist but are not needed.

Secretary of the Navy Wilbur and Mrs. Sippel, president, General Federal of Women's Clubs, both of whom today indorse the national flag contest in which the first questions are announced on this page.

NOTABLES BACK FLAG CONTEST

The enthusiasm and sincerity with which the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's flag contest is being received by persons and organizations from all walks of life was emphasized Saturday with the recital of letters from Mrs. John F. Sippel, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, which has a membership of 2,500,000, and Secretary of the Navy Curtis D. Wilbur.

Both are of the opinion that such a contest does much to stimulate and develop the loyal and happy sense of "country" in both young and old and both believe it deserves hearty support.

Mrs. Sippel says:

"The background of my activities in the interest of an awakened loyal citizenship and the responsibilities which I have assumed as the leader of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, as well as my personal inclination, combine to give zest to my consent to your request that I indorse the work of The United States Flag Association and its flag contest.

"You have both my indorsement and my earnest good wishes for the success of your undertaking. I do, indeed, believe that efforts of this sort do much to develop the loyal and happy sense of "country" in the youth of the nation."

a large quantity of assorted liquors and to serving a warrant on Robertson.

"What was Robertson doing?" asked Attorney Richardson.

"At a table near his hand a glass of liquor," replied the witness.

On cross-examination McCartney testified he had smelled the glass before Robertson and that it bore the odor of whisky.

Joseph A. Frayne, former assistant prohibition administrator, now a special investigator for the dry enforcement forces, called to the stand, identified Robertson and A. E. Gill as having been in the club at the time of raid. He said Gill had opened a cupboard so the raiders could procure records and papers.

Besides those named the defendants are: A. E. Gill, secretary; Charles W. Bott, W. L. Trimble, A. C. Walter, William Bader, John F. Soutter, John Coney, Frank G. Peters, Valentine Przeklasa, M. Allshouse and William A. Parchman.

The case of Police Magistrate John W. Orie, his brother, Stanley, and Daniel McLaughlin, charged with federal income tax evasions, scheduled for today was postponed until Wednesday because of illness of Attorney A. M. Oliver, defense counsel.

Today's Flagism

Thomas A. Edison, "America's Grand Old Man" and the world's foremost inventor, was born on February 11, 1847. Daniel Boone, colorful figure in America's pioneering days, was born on this date in 1735. These men, each contributing in his individual way to the glorification of Old Glory, might be regarded as typifying the spirit of America and its symbol, the Stars and Stripes. This is a land where all are free to develop inherent genius and where such genius is promptly and adequately acknowledged. Edison recently heartily indorsed the Flag Contest now being sponsored by the Hearst Newspapers.

Fall Kills Inmate Of Swissvale Home

Zant Miller, 35, inmate of the Home for Aged Couples, Swissvale, died today from injuries suffered last Monday when he fell in the home. He fractured his right hip.

FIRST EIGHT QUESTIONS PRINTED

Boys and girls all over America are starting today to work for the greatest award ever offered in any contest—a free trip around the world. The first questions in the flag contest of the United States Flag Association appear in this and 17 other Hearst newspapers today, and it is the answer to these questions that will be a big factor in determining what boy and girl will win this grand national award, as well as the other awards of trips to Washington, medals and testimonials.

The other factor in the contest is the writhg of an essay on "Old Glory's Greatest Glory," of such length that it can be recited in five minutes or less.

GRADING EXPLAINED

Additional questions will appear in this newspaper every Monday, Wednesday and Friday for three weeks. For the next three Sundays the Sun-Telegraph will reprint all of the questions that have appeared, week by week, up to that Sunday.

The answer to each question in this contest will be marked according to the value that has been placed upon it by the United States Flag Association. Thus, the harder the question, the higher the mark it will receive. The total value for the entire 75 questions is 150 points in the contest, and contestants who submit perfect answers to the entire 75 will be given this marking. The composition of the essay will be graded on the basis of 35 points for a perfect essay, and 15 points will be the basis for judging the recitation of the essay. Thus, the highest mark in the entire contest will be 200.

Cut out and save the first eight questions. They are printed below.

RULES OF CONTEST

The condensed rules and regulations governing the contest are repeated herewith for the benefit of those who have not already seen them, and a complete set of these regulations will be furnished those who apply to conduct contests:

1. The contest is open to every boy and girl in the United States, regardless of race, creed and color, between the ages of 14 and 18, on Flag Day, June 14, this year, provided

WILHELM NAUER WASHING HIS DISHES

Nauer, a big, blond Lithuanian, is not only Pittsburgh's probable champion dishwasher, but, perhaps, the world's only "scientific" dishwasher. He washed Micarta serving trays for Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company to test their durability. Twenty trays are piled before him. Many times each one is soused in suds, swabbed with a cloth, rinsed and dried. Each tray is washed every three and one-third minutes, hour after hour, day after day, month after month, to discover how long the tray may be used.

'MAGIC' CARRIES PASTOR'S MESSAGES TO FILLED CHURCH

THE REV. T. V. VOORHEES BREAKING SHACKLES
By freeing himself of chains locked on his wrists, the Rev. Mr. Voorhees in his church drives home the point here that man becomes free from the hold of sin when he accepts Christ.

PACKED CHURCH AWED BY METHODIST MAGIC
There is always a big attendance at the Venetia Methodist Episcopal Church when Mr. Voorhees illustrates his sermons with sleight-of-hand tricks. Here is an awed audience of adults and youngsters.

MAYME M'CLURE
"Life is empty without God," sermonizes Mr. Voorhees, holding up an empty hat for examination. Then out comes a scarf. "Life is ful with God."

MINISTER DOES 'MAGIC' TRICKS IN PULPIT

Magic always has needed the support of faith, but it had remained for the Rev. T. V. Voorhees, pastor of the Venetia (Pa.) Methodist Episcopal Church, to stimulate faith with magic.

Here is a favorite trick he uses to illustrate the emptiness of life without God and the glory and fullness that come to man when he accepts Christ as his Savior. Mr. Voorhees holds an empty hat in the pulpit.

"Life without God," he explains, "is like this empty hat. Now watch it carefully."

He waves the magic wand over the hat. Presto! the empty headpiece discloses a silk scarf. A member of the congregation pulls out the scarf as the preacher-magician explains:

"Look at this. When Christ enters your heart, your life will become richer and fuller."

Voorhees has hundreds of tricks which he uses in sermons and talks to the children. He has appeared before church groups all over the country and recently published two books, "Magic for Ministers" and "The Conjurer in Church."

Bouquets Sent By Americans Worry Foch

PARIS, Feb. 11.—(AP.)—Marshal Ferdinand Foch was well enough this morning to worry about the vast number of flowers he has received from the American colony here.

"Does that mean," he asked, "that they think my end is here?"

Dr. Heitz-Boyer, his physician, reassured him, telling him that Americans usually cheered convalescents in that fashion.

Dr. Heitz-Boyer, Davenlere, and Degennes had an hour's visit with the Marshal. They said they found his general condition improved and that he was able to eat almost normal.

His temperature this morning was 99.3; his pulse 82. Visits of friends to the sick room will be prohibited for a long while, one of the doctors said.

WILSON-COLLINS TRIAL OPENS

A jury of eight women and four men will determine the guilt or innocence of Alderman George S. Wilson of the Eighth Ward; George P. Andrews, private detective, and Charles W. Collins, investigator for the Children's Service Bureau. Wilson is charged with conspiracy to extort, extortion and malfeasance in office. Collins and Andrews are charged with conspiracy and extortion. Judge J. Frank Graff, Armstrong county is presiding.

Indictments against the three were returned by the probing grand jury that made an investigation of slot machine racketeering. The charges grew out of the alleged fining of slot machine operators, their being discharged without the formality of hearings, and failure to turn the confiscated gambling devices and money in them over to the county authorities.

District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner has listed more than 100 illegal liquor cases for trial this week. Some of the cases date back four or five years and in several instances the defendants have died. Gardner is of the belief that a large number will plead guilty in hope of receiving lenient sentences.

SLED HITS GIRL, MIND BLANK; BOY HURT

A 9-year-old girl was suffering from at least partial loss of memory today, and a boy was in St. Joseph's Hospital under observation for concussion of the brain, as the result of a coasting accident last night in which five persons were injured.

The girl, Marjorie Donahue, 123 Oakmont street, could not remember the accident, of what preceded it, nor of how she had reached the home of her grandmother, Mrs. A. V. Callahan, of 167 Olympia street.

SLED HITS SKATERS

The accident occurred when a sled bearing John McShane, 18, 1319 Virginia avenue, and Elnora Smithyman, 21, of 1320 Virginia avenue, struck a group of skaters in Virginia avenue at the foot of Olympia street.

McShane was taken to the hospital. Miss Smithyman was treated by a physician. Of the skaters, Phyllis Fay, 17, 168 Olmpia street, suffered a fracture of the right leg; Cecilia Callahan, 15, and Dorothy Zerret, 15, of 2895 Bergman street, suffered bruises.

The Donahue girl was knocked unconscious and was taken by playmates to the Callaghan home, where they left her on the doorstep in the bitter cold. When her grandparents found the child she had revived, but could not remember what had happened.

Dr. Jacob J. Meisel, Jr., of 201 Grandview avenue, was called, and said he believed the child's memory had been affected.

WALES ABANDONS HUNTING AS HE ASSUMES NEW DUTIES

LONDON, Feb. 11.—(AP.)—Surprise and disappointment prevailed in English hunting circles today after publication in the Express of a story that the Prince of Wales had decided to abandon hunting and point-to-point racing.

The story said a hunting stable of 15 horses, among them Degomme, a favorite, would be sold within a fortnight, the decision being due to rapidly increasing duties of the prince because of the illness of his father.

In his years of riding, the prince has become very popular among hunting men. He took many falls while attaining mastery of his horses, but has improved greatly in the last three seasons, and now there are few hunters who can follow him in a fast run.

REMEMBER WHEN—?

How good is your memory?

How much do you recall of what Grandpa told you about interesting things in Pittsburgh?

Do you like to "talk old times?"

A glance backward sometimes makes us appreciate more fully the progress of the present and the developments coming in the near future.

We believe "memory chests" of Pittsburghers contain things that will interest us all, young and old. Here are a few "Remember Whens—" dished out yesterday by one who revels in this city's growth:

REMEMBER WHEN—

There were three lines of car tracks on Smithfield Street Bridge?

The Library Hall was the city's principal amusement place?

Pittsburgh had no executive called Mayor?

When Pennsylvania "village cut-ups" wore "chestnut bells" on their vests and rang them each time someone told an old, worn-out joke?

When poultry shows, dog shows, etc., were held in the Diamond Market House?

If you think of some interesting "Remember Whens—" jot them down and send them to the "Remember When Editor," the Sun-Telegraph. One dollar will be awarded for each "Remember When—" published.

CHINESE MARK NEW YEAR, BUT WHAT YEAR?

As Chinese met Chinese in Pittsburgh yesterday, the greeting they exchanged was "Kon Seng Fau Toi," which simply means that they were wishing each other a "Happy New Year." Most of the members of Pittsburgh's Chinese colony in upper Third avenue professed they did not know exactly what new year they were celebrating.

Those adhering to the ancient system of computing time said they were welcoming about the six thousandth year. Others of a more modernistic trend of thought and, evidently, adherents of Chinese nationalism, declared that it was the first day of the eighteenth year. They are measuring the flight of time from the establishment of the Chinese Republic.

In any event, whether they celebrated the beginning of the six-thousandth or the eighteenth year, they made a real holiday of the occasion.

Roast turkey was the main dish at all Chinese New Year's dinners. Other delicacies of oriental flavor graced the family tables, including a great variety of fancy candy, rice cakes, nuts and fruit. Before the delicacies were placed on the dinner table, they graced miniature altars on which were pictures of Confucius. Joss sticks burned on the flower and food-laden altars all day.

As peace reigns in China today, so Pittsburgh's Chinese New Year celebrations were marked by a spirit of peace and harmony. Large groups of citizens of the "Celestial Empire" congregated in all of the stores. They played Mah Jong and pinochle, smoked slow-burning tobacco from clay pipes and munched on lichee nuts and sugar candy. And, every time a newcomer put in his appearance, the sonorous "Kon Seng Fau Toi" could be heard.

LINCOLN GREAT 'COMMY' SHOOTER, SAYS CHICAGOAN

CHICAGO, Feb. 11.—(AP.)—William C. Slemmons remembers 'way back when Abraham Lincoln was an up and coming marble shooter. Mr. Slemmons, who is 85 years old, related the story today and confessed that all the details were not clear. "You see," he said, "I was only a boy of nine then."

It was in a little court yard in Paris, Ill., that Slemmons and two other boys were exercising their skill in an effort to win the agates when a tall figure stopped to watch.

"Boys, I would like to have a hand in the game," said Mr. Lincoln. "We'll play partners."

"I remember how funny he looked, this six-footer, down on his knees by the circle we had made with a stick," Slemmons said. "He and one of the other boys played partners. Whenever Lincoln made a good shot, he chuckled. When the game was over Abe and his partner had all the marbles.

"He handed them back to us. Thanked us for playing with him, and walked slowly away.

"I have one definite impression of the event. Mr. Lincoln was certainly a great marble shooter."

EDUCATORS, DOCTORS SEEK TEMPERANCE PLAN

FIND DRY LAW FAILURE, PRAISE HEARST CONTEST

PROF. H. B. SHELDON, noted head of the Department of Physics, New York University, with more than 1,200 students in his division, was asked by the New York American for his views on the Hearst $25,000 temperance prize contest, now stirring the nation from coast to coast.

"You can neither make angels nor prevent fermentation by law; apart from this the Eighteenth Amendment has everything in its favor. Of course the prohibition laws are an expression of an intelligent modern attitude which recognizes the fact that the individual must bend to that which is to the welfare of all. It is, to borrow words, a noble experiment.'

"No one connected with university work can deny that prohibition has raised the drinking student from the position of an outcast to a level among the smartest. It is the thing! Regardless of the motives behind the Volstead act, it has popularized drinking.

"Its best friends should join with its worst enemies in Mr. Hearst's $25,000 temperance prize contest to find a way to repeal this error and substitute in its stead something which will gain ground in a positive direction, even though it does not sweep alcohol away over night, as the Volstead act was supposed to have done."

The foregoing is a fair specimen of the views of many eminent educators on the quest for a true temperance substitute for prohibition. Following are other interviews of Hearst newspaper correspondents with authorities of note:

A. E. Griffiths, M. D.

Dr. Albert E. Griffiths, of Bayside, L. I., New York, consultant of the Chemico-Biologic Laboratories and chief of the A. E. F. Medical Corps in the Coblenz occupational district in the World War:

"The result sought by the people who framed the Eighteenth Amendment has not been achieved, as I see it. Their effort seems to have been a failure. In the little corner of civilization that I see, a man can get all the liquor he is willing to pay for.

"I think it is equally futile, however, to waste time discussing proposals to change the prohibition amendment. If a condition of temperance is to be brought about, it will have to be done in some other manner.

"There seems to me to be no doubt that the national sale would be the most reasonable way to limit consumption. The governments of Australia, New Zealand and Canada have set an example with their systems of modified government control. I think the basic conditions in the United States and Canada are about the same; a system that works successfully there should do the same here.

"Prohibition has been tried and found a failure in certain of the Scandinavian countries. Government control, put in its place, has proved beneficial.

"My stand is not so much that of the citizen who cries that his personal liberty is being violated, but that of the physician who sees the lack of sensible control of the sale of requisite alcoholic beverages—the inability of physicians to obtain supplies of an amount and quality necessary to the well-being of their patients.

"Then, too, as a physician, I see the value to mankind of the lighter beverages in moderation, particularly to men who work hard. Beer, for instance, has a high caloric value and its metabolic effect is distinctly beneficial when taken in moderation. The worker who stops for his pot of beer at the end of a hard day's toil derives a distinct benefit from it. Wine-drinking peoples find the same healthful relaxation in their vintages.

"My support, and I believe the support of most physicians, would be given to any sensible control plan, freed from party politics and administrated by honest persons working for the benefit of humanity. For this reason it is to be earnestly hoped that the quest of the temperance prize contest will be successful in finding an adequate and workable plan."

Michael Lake, M. D.

Dr. Michael Lake, eminent specialist in diseases of the stomach, 1,000 Park avenue, New York:

"Due to the wider prevalence of drinking that has followed prohibition there has been an increase in gastro-intestinal disorders. This is a condition which would be constantly diminishing instead of increasing if true temperance were being practiced in this country.

"Any attempt, therefore, to bring about a condition of healthful moderation in drinking, through a plan evolved by the prize temperance contest, should receive encouragement from every thinking person of both the professional and lay public."

Harry J. Bareham

Harry J. Bareham, county treasurer and Republican chairman, Monroe County, N. Y.:

"Mr. Hearst's prize offer deserves the commendation of both wets and drys. An opportunity is now provided for lifting prohibition above the level of a curbstone issue. At last we have the means of bringing to one common center the sentiment of the country.

"The Hearst offer comes at a time, too, when President-elect Hoover, true to his campaign promises to tackle prohibition in a constructive way, is about to appoint a commission to grapple with the problem. The results of the Hearst temperance prize contest should be extremely helpful under the circumstances, and undoubtedly will be watched with keen interest in governmental circles as well as by the average citizen.

"Mr. Hearst's contest and the governmental study soon to be undertaken should go a long way toward solving the prohibition problem for good."

Julius Friedrich

Julius Friedrich, Rochester's "sunshine daddy" to thousands of crippled and underprivileged children:

"Personally, prohibition deprives me of no more than liquor gratifies me. I do not touch it. But prohibition does not exist, and I cannot close my eyes to the back room bottles and raccoon coat flasks.

"Conditions need a remedy, and if Mr. Hearst by his splendid prize offer can help to improve them, I am for the Hearst plan. Certainly there must be a ray of sunshine in it or he would not have proposed it. I hope it is a means to a temperance end."

7 Rules of $25,000 Temperance Contest

The purpose of the contest is to obtain a practicable plan, as a substitute for prohibition, which will secure better actual temperance conditions, which will be more easily possible of enforcement by state and Federal authorities, which will offer less encouragement to crime and tend less to debauch the public service, and which will not so outrage and violate the fundamental rights and personal liberties of American citizens.

The rules and conditions of the contest are simple and are as follows:

1—Every person is entitled to enter the contest, but no one person may submit more than one plan.

2—The practicable plan proposed as a substitute for prohibition must be set forth in an article containing not more than 1,000 words.

3—This contest will close on April 30, 1929, and no plan which has not been mailed and postmarked on or before that date will be considered.

4—The articles submitted in the contest will be judged by a committee of eminent Americans, the personnel of the committee to be announced at a later date.

5—The full prize of $25,000 will be awarded to the contestant submitting the best plan as a practical temperance substitute for prohibition.

6—If other plans not awarded the first prize shall still be considered worthy of some compensation by the committee, a second prize of $5,000 and other prizes of $1,000 each may be awarded.

7—Articles submitting a plan to be considered in this contest may be sent to the temperance contest committee, care of the editor of any one of the following Hearst newspapers: Albany Times-Union, Atlanta Georgian, Baltimore News, Boston Evening American, Chicago Herald and Examiner, Detroit Times, Los Angeles Examiner, New York American, Omaha Bee-News, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Rochester Journal, San Antonio Light, San Francisco Examiner, Syracuse Journal, Seattle Post-Intelligencer, Washington Herald, Wisconsin News (Milwaukee).

SUICIDE COUPLE LAID TO REST

A double funeral service was held yesterday for Frank Lesjak, and his wife, Mary, from their home at Sygan, near Bridgeville. The couple both ended their lives, the wife last Wednesday at the Elizabeth Magee Hospital, and the husband Friday in a shed near his home. Burial took place in Melrose Cemetery.

Mrs. Lesjak, about to be discharged from the hospital, was waiting for her husband to call and take her home. Despondent because the husband failed to arrive at the appointed time, the wife leaped from a window on the fourth floor.

The husband, brooding over her death, hanged himself in a shed near his home while funeral arrangements were being made for the wife. Nine children survive.

Woman Arrested, Tries to Hang Self

Shortly after she had been lodged in the matron's department of the Central Police Station, Mrs. Mary B. Jordan, 60, of 1010 Abdell street, North Side, attempted to hang herself yesterday, police say, with strips of bedclothing which she had fashioned into a noose. She was cut down by Lieut. William Walsh and Turnkey William Flaccus and taken to St. Francis Hospital. Her condition is not serious, it is said.

Mrs. Jordan is a domestic in the home of Charles Houston, of 7225 Meade street, Morals Court clerk. She was arrested on Houston's complaint, police say, after she had become disorderly in his home.

BLAST INJURES BOY IGNITING GASOLINE

Peter Gusky, 11, of 1445 Spring way, was reported in a serious condition in St. Francis Hospital today as a result of burns suffered when he threw a match into a can of gasoline he scooped up from a curb in Spring way, near Sixteenth street, last night.

The gasoline flowed from an underground tank of the Gulf Refining Company filling station at Penn avenue and Sixteenth street, which was being filled. The gasoline flowing down Spring way, ignited and scorched the front of eight houses and the rear of St. Elizabeth's Catholic Church.

Capt. Sol Kramer, of No. 3 Engine Company, suffered an injury to his right foot when he stepped on a nail. He was treated at Mercy Hospital. The fire damage was estimated at $300 by Battalion Chief H. J. Welhrauch.

Man, Woman and Baby Die From Gas

BATAVIA, O., Feb. 11.—(AP.)—Three persons were found dead in an automobile near Williamsburg yesterday, the victims of monoxide gas, according to Coroner Joseph Curliss.

Delmer Richards, 21, Mrs. Mildred Carson Storer, 17, and her eight-month-old daughter, Frances Jeane, had gone riding in a small machine which was heated by a tap in the exhaust pipe. Their bodies were found by Richards' father. The motor was still running.

PLUNGE IN MOTHER'S ARMS DOWN STAIRS KILLS BABY

A mother's heroic effort to save his life unavailing, Gilbert Miller, 7-month-old son of Hilda Miller, lay dead in his home today, the result of concussion of the brain suffered when his mother tripped while carrying the baby in her home at 122 Newett street, Carrick, and plunged down a stairway.

The mother and her sister, Mrs. Louis Weis, had returned from a party at the home of relatives and it was a mother eager to comfort a child from whom she had been separated several hours that dashed up a stairway. She picked him up and was on her way to the kitchen to warm his bottle when her heel caught on a stair tread and she lost her balance.

Thoughtless of herself, she clasped him tightly and shielded his tender body with hers as she fell, but at the bottom of the stairway the little head struck the floor.

The mother, after summoning her sister, fainted. Dr. Norman A. Hartman treated the baby's injuries, but he died several hours later.

Quick relief for COLDS since 1889

She woke up without her cold

Norma is just an average girl who works in a poorly ventilated office, dashes out for an ill-chosen lunch, gets her feet soaked, doesn't get enough sleep, and then develops a cold. Well-meaning friends suggest all sorts of things. She takes this, does that, sniffs the other. But the cold hangs on stubbornly and gets worse.

Why? Because none of the suggested treatments get to the root of the trouble: her physical condition.

GROVE'S BROMO QUININE is good for a cold because it aims at things far deeper than surface symptoms. Mildly laxative, it cleans the digestive tract and rids the system of accumulated poisons. Then it tones and builds up the body's defenses. No wonder millions have proved that when you come down with a cold, GROVE'S BROMO QUININE will help you wake up without it.

At the first hint of trouble, take the tiny tablets as directed. Powerful and stimulating, they help you side-step the cold entirely, or throw it off quickly. A big help in fortifying the system against grip and flu... Make sure of the genuine, of which 22,000,000 boxes were sold last year, by emphasizing GROVE'S, when asking for GROVE'S BROMO QUININE. Price 30c.

NO CLUE FOUND TO DOCTOR'S WIFE

Mystery today shrouded circumstances under which Mrs. Leah Reber, wife of Dr. A. Reber, disappeared from her home in Churchill road, Wilkins Township.

Mrs. Reber and Dr. Reber, an osteopath, drove home from Pittsburgh Saturday afternoon. The wife walked to the home while Dr. Reber was putting up their car in the rear garage. When he returned to the house his wife had vanished.

WOMAN MELANCHOLY

Dr. Reber said his wife had been suffering from melancholia, but doubted that she was depressed enough to leave her home.

The only public means of transportation from the Reber home is a bus line, which runs to Wilkinsburg.

DIDN'T RIDE BUS

Investigation brought out that Mrs. Reber, who was known to the drivers by sight, had not ridden any of the coaches Saturday afternoon. Her whereabouts in the home was undisturbed.

The Rebers lived in Johnstown until three years ago. A niece of Mrs. Reber's—Mrs. James Barton—still resides there, she told the Sun-Telegraph today that she had not seen her aunt in more than a year.

"I smoke a Lucky instead of eating sweets."

Grace M. Hay Drummond Hay

Lady Grace Drummond Hay, only woman passenger on the Graf Zeppelin.

"The fact that we were not permitted to smoke from the time the Graf Zeppelin left Friedrichshafen until we landed at Lakehurst only increased my appetite for a Lucky Strike. Oh, how good that first one tasted! I'm really keen for Lucky Strike—the toasted flavor is delightful. I smoke a Lucky instead of eating sweets—that's what many men have been doing for years. I think it high time we women smoked Luckies and kept our figures trim."

GRACE M. HAY DRUMMOND HAY

The modern common sense way—reach for a Lucky instead of a sweet. Everyone is doing it—men keep healthy and fit, women retain a trim figure. Lucky Strike, the finest tobaccos, skilfully blended, then toasted to develop a flavor which is a delightful alternative for that craving for fattening sweets.

Toasting frees Lucky Strike from impurities. 20,679 physicians recognize this when they say Luckies are less irritating than other cigarettes. That's why folks say: "It's good to smoke Luckies."

Note: Authorities attribute the enormous increase in Cigarette smoking to the improvement in the process of Cigarette manufacture by the application of heat. It is true that during the year 1928, Lucky Strike Cigarettes showed a greater increase than all other Cigarettes combined. This surely confirms the public's confidence in the superiority of Lucky Strike.

ICE CREAM

"Look at these snowy white clothes . . . all washed the Old Witch way"

No more Blue Mondays for me!

I'll wash the scrubless way . . . with this new-type cleansing fluid I've discovered

The writer of this advertisement keeps house just like yourself. I do my own washing and cooking, too.

So you see the suggestion I give you is based on loads of practical experience.

For years washday was always "Blue Monday" to me. I used to rub and scrub my energy away. But no more.

Now I simply soak clothes clean . . . get them whiter than I ever did before. Wouldn't you like to know the secret?

A Workless Washday

I heard about it first from a friend of mine. It's a cleansing fluid that you pour right in the washtub.

Thanks to Old Witch I never rub or scrub a single bit of laundry now.

Here is how it works. You take a tubful of steaming hot water. Put in soap, just the way you always do. Then add a little Old Witch.

But don't rub or scrub. Just let clothes soak . . . then rinse and hang out to dry.

You'll be surprised at their snowy whiteness. Delighted at their fresh, clean odor. Here's a cleaner wash than you've ever had before . . . and you do it without work.

JUDGE MILLER'S DEATH NOTED IN COURTS

Courts of Allegheny County and the United States here paused today to note the passing of Judge Jacob J. Miller, whose death yesterday at 71 ended 26 years' service on the bench in Orphans Court, where he was presiding judge.

In Common Pleas Court, while Assistant City Solicitor Harold M. Irons announced the death of Judge Miller, Judge James R. Macfarlane, who presided, spoke briefly of his dead colleague's life, and announced adjournment of the court from noon tomorrow until Wednesday morning.

Attorney A. M. Imbrie made the announcement before Judge James B. Drew in Criminal Court. In Orphans Court, Judge Miller's associates, Judges Thomas P. Trimble and H. Walton Mitchell, sat to hear announcement of his death by Attorney Joseph Stadfeldt, then adjourned until Wednesday morning. In Federal Court Attorney Albert C. Hirsch announced Judge Miller's death.

Funeral services will be held at 4 o'clock tomorrow in Calvary Protestant Episcopal church, of which he was senior warden.

His death, which occurred several hours before a maid in his Park Mansions home reported his failure to arise as usual, evoked general expression of sympathy today.

Judge Miller was born in Somerset County in 1857, a son of a German Baptist minister, Jacob Daniel Miller, and Barbara Saylor Miller. At the age of 14 he began teaching in that county, later attending Somerset Academy and Indiana State Normal School and then becoming principal of the Johnstown public schools. Coming to Pittsburgh to study law, he was principal of four North Side schools while pursuing his studies. He was admitted to the bar here in 1884, later taking a post-graduate course at the University of Virginia Law School.

Nominated as a Democrat, Judge Miller ascended the bench in January, 1903, on the Citizens' Party ticket after a stirring political campaign, defeating Judge Josiah Cohen, appointed to the additional judgeship created by the 1901 Legislature.

He was only 45 at the time, and was re-elected twice, his third term extending to 1934. In 1919 he became president judge upon the death of the late Judge James W. Over.

Judge Miller leaves a son, Attorney Clark Miller, who lived with his father, and a nephew, John O. Miller, vice president of the Peoples Savings & Trust Company.

Judge Miller was a member of the Duquesne Club, University Club, Pittsburgh Golf Club, Pittsburgh Field Club, the Allegheny County Bar Association, the Pennsylvania Bar Association and the American Bar Association. He served on the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission. He was a Freemason of long standing, a member of Duquesne Lodge, F. & A. M., Syria Shrine, and past eminent commander of Tancred Commandary.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

THE TRUTH STONE

By LILLIACE M. MITCHELL

LUCY was poor and very, very honest—even with herself which is more than many girls can boast. And Gates Fisher was rich, so rich that he worked in his father's advertising agency only because he chose to do so.

Gates Fisher knew that he was in love with Lucy who was one of the newest apprentice copy-writers at a very tiny salary. Lucy thought that she loved Gates, too, but she could not make sure. She pondered over the question night after night after she got home and sat brushing her sleek hair with two brushes to make it the more sleek and satiny.

"If Gates were poor—oh, so poor that we'd have to live in a furnished room—as bad as this one—for the rest of our lives—would I want to be married then? A still little voice 'way inside her seemed to answer—nay, clamor—yes. But Lucy was very, very honest and she couldn't make sure.

It was on her birthday which happened also to be a holiday for the office force that Gates Fisher asked her to drive with him. The car was one of those luxurious little two-seated affairs with soft cushions that let one sink in rather deeper than one expected and sparkling glass all the way around that let in light and sunshine but no dust. It was a dream of a car!

When they passed a very tiny car, opened and uncovered, with a young couple driving, Lucy looked at them curiously. She knew in that instant that she would as soon be riding in that with Gates Fisher as to be in this beautiful car which was one of the most expensive makes.

"We have to get some little souvenir—some little thing to remember the day," Gates Fisher told her when they stopped at a Chinese curio shop. "They are known in here for having the real imported stuff instead of cheap imitations. I—I couldn't get you anything imitation, Lucy! The real thing for you is hardly good enough!"

And inside the shop they looked about with the help of the new clerk, an American girl who admitted that she had been employed here only the day before and knew but little about the stock on hand. And from the soft glances that she allowed to wander Gates Fisher's way Lucy knew that she would quit her job in a moment if she had the chance! Especially such a chance as Gates Fisher! And Lucy's usually soft heart hardened; she would despise herself if she married for money.

"This is a Chinese truth stone," the clerk told Gates Fisher with soft, blue eyes telling him other things. "When a person holds this in his hands he is bound to tell the truth no matter what his inclinations may be to tell a falsehood—at least that is what the proprietor of the shop told me this morning." Her eyes went on telling him how wonderful he was, how his hair was more lustrous than any she had ever seen.

But Gates Fisher hadn't even noticed her eyes. His eyes were on the truth stone. "How much?" he asked bluntly.

The figure was high and Lucy begged him not to buy it when she saw his hand go to his pocket.

"Go on, Lucy!" he teased. "We won't have to go without luncheon even if we do buy this truth stone, you know!"

And when they left the shop to go into a nearby smart restaurant for luncheon Gates Fisher had the truth stone in his pocket. They had completely finished luncheon before he again referred to it. Then he said, in a casual fashion:

"By the way, Lucy! You must take your lucky stone or truth stone or whatever it was that girl called it. I might forget to hand it to you later, you know. Kind of pretty, isn't it?" he said, holding it so that the light was caught and reflected on it.

"You paid too much," she chided him. "If you wanted to get some little thing, that would have been all right, but——"

"Take it," he said.

She took it between her fingers and looked at it, remembering the clerk in the store and all the messages her eyes had held for the unseeing Gates Fisher. She was about to drop it into her purse when he said suddenly:

"Hold on a moment, Lucy! I want to ask you something. Do you—do you—love me, Lucy?"

She raised startled eyes to his. She had known he would ask her the question. Indeed, it had been hovering on his lips for weeks but she hadn't expected it to come in just this way. Somehow she had always thought of her engagement as having its inception in a garden flooded with silver moonlight with strains of orchestral music coming softly from a distance. But love doesn't always come in just the guise or fashion in which it has been looked for and now she dropped here eyes and opened her mesh purse so that she might drop in the Chinese truth stone.

"Wait!" he said, his hand closing over hers as it held the truth stone. "Hold that stone in your hand while you answer, Lucy! That stone will make you tell the truth and if you're left to yourself—hold it, Lucy, hold it!" he pleaded.

And Lucy did as she was commanded and without volitian, seemingly, she dropped her eyes before his and her head nodded an almost imperceptible little nod of acquiescence.

They weren't old-fashioned there in the restaurant but even they were amazed when he took her in his arms as they left the table and kissed her. He appeared not to think anything of it and poor little Lucy just flushed, both embarrassed and pleased.

Back in the Chinese shop the proprietor was talking to the new clerk, his little daughter, Yamel, dancing about gaily. "Where are the little stones she picked up at the water's edge yesterday?" he said sharply. "They were here on this ledge—"

"With those truth stones?" asked the new clerk.

"Ah, but no! The truth stones are these over here in the drawer, do you see!" he said impatiently.

And the new clerk laughed. It made but little difference to her that she had sold a common stone for a truth stone! That young man would never know the difference and if she told her employer he would undoubtedly be angry! So the new clerk said nothing at all!

NEURITIS PAINS QUICKLY ROUTED BY NEW KONJOLA

Former Sufferer Describes How Famous Medicine Went to Source of Diseases After Three Years of Misery.

"In Konjola I found the first and only relief from my suffering." How often this glad statement is made to the Konjola Man, who is at the Dow Drug Company, formerly McCulloch's, Penn Ave. and Sixth St., this city, by grateful men and women made well through the use of this advanced medicine.

MR. R. W. PATTON

There is no secret, no mystery about the amazing success of Konjola. It is a medicine containing 32 ingredients, 22 of them the medicinal juices of roots and herbs. Konjola works with the sufferer's own food, restoring a more normal, healthy action to the important functionary organs of the body, such as the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Konjola is a medicine of accomplishments, not promises; a medicine of results, not claims. From the Konjola Man you will hear of case after case wherein this master compound proved the first and only remedy that brought relief. He has been sent to this city, not to sell Konjola, primarily, but to help all seekers after health, to advise them about their health problems. Many of his callers are telling how they were already benefited through the use of Konjola. Take, for instance, the statement of Mr. R. W. Patton, Gibsonia, Pa., a short distance from Pittsburgh, who said to the Konjola Man a few days ago:

"Since taking Konjola I have but one regret and that is that I didn't know of it a great deal sooner. What days of suffering it would have saved me. Three years ago I was afflicted with rheumatism and neuritis. I tried many medicines, in fact, everything that was recommended, but I might as well have taken water. I lived a life of constant torment; of agonizing pains. Nights were just so many hours of distress; sleep was out of the question. Every morning I dragged myself off to work, which was nothing more than torture. My legs were stiff and sore and made it almost impossible to walk. What did the future hold for me? I could see nothing but a life of suffering—I was merely existing, not living.

"After so many fruitless quests for relief, I had little faith in any medicines or treatments. That is why I did not pay much attention to the many wonderful things that were being said about Konjola. Finally, my friends practically insisted that I give it a trial and, more to please them than anything else, I started the treatment. What a glorious day that was for me. The first bottle opened the road to health and I traveled it fast. The aches and pains grew fainter and fainter and then, just like chaff before the wind, they vanished completely. Sound sleep has been restored to me and new strength and energy are mine. Work is no longer a drudgery; life is not a torture. Ahead of me I see days of happiness with new and glorious health. To Konjola I owe everything."

Konjola contains no harmful drugs—it needs no such hazardous ingredients. Konjola is all medicine, every drop and every drop works. It is said that no sufferer can afford not to give it a trial. Every day of delay simply means another day of needless suffering.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Company, formerly McCulloch's, Penn Ave. and Sixth St., this city, where he is meeting the public daily, introducing and explaining the merits of this master medicine.

Place Raided as Wife Complains

Charged with violating the Snyder act, Blanche Reese, of 222 East Lacock street, and Robert A. Wilson, of East street, were held for court by Magistrate A. D. Brandon in Morals Court yesterday. Charles Lamden, of South Canal street, was fined $50 on a charge of keeping a disorderly house. The raid on the Wilson establishment was made, police say, on complaint of Mrs. Kinary, who charged that her husband loafed in the place. Kinary was held over by Brandon.

MINNIEHOKUS KNOWS PLENTY ABOUT FILM STARS AND SHE TELLS IT, TOO

By DOROTHY HERZOG.

(Copyright, 1929, Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 11.

FLOSSIE MURPHY, the colony's impromptu philosopher, rises to state there are two things she simply cannot remember: (1) who is vice president of the United States; (2) whether she passed her twenty-third birthday seven or eight years ago.

Just when I feared Minniehokus, our lil' Indian guide, had decided to contribute to the peace cause this week by making herself scarce, in she traipses, beaming from ear to ear. And what a spread her grin has. It violates facial and social rules. However, she wishes to hold paragraph speech.

Catchum ride? How auto. Cop say: "Hi, sister, wanter ride?" Me say: "Sure." No care he call sister. All same, no relation.

Hear about John Considine, Jr.? He make filum. Called Artist. He young. No like. Plenty pursue. Oh, John like two purpose. Reap much. Like Katherine Bennett. She Fred Niblo sister-in-law. She blonde. One time try pitshurs. Not so hot. Live with Fred and sister. John show her Hollywood.

John know Carmen Pantages. Swell dish. She Alexander Pantages' daughter. He woodvil do-re-me-brave. She crazy for John. Like Katherine. John gotter make up mind. Decide 'tween two. Ask Carmen marry him. She say okeh. Mebbe soon. Mebbe not. No can savvy. All same. John see Katherine one time. She not with him. Heart go klopty klop. Pretty hard choose squaw sometime.

John Considine, Jr.

Marion Davies Goes Shopping

GO Magic Shop. Magic Shop on Hollywood boulevard. Marion Davies there. Marion buy ha-ha things. Me say: "How, Marion. She say: "Hello, Minniehokus. Wot you do here?" Me say: "Look, just look. Broke." Marion say, "Humph, that sound like nut." Me say: "Uh huh." Marion buy me ha-ha things, too. She write name on wall. Man in shop ask her. Harry D'Arrast, Matty Kemp, Raymond McKee, Jimmy Hall, Larry Grey, Charlie Chaplin one time write name, too. See funny pitshur on wall. Pitshur nine Scotchmen in kilt. Scotchmen bout to suicide. One on end hold pistol. One on other end hold plate. Heap cheap suicide! Marion say: "Minniehokus, you come see me Sunday at beach." Me say: "Sure. Like eat Sunday.

Marion Davies.

Betty Brent "Swell Dish"

PRETTY hungry one night. Go see Betty Brent. Her brave Harry Edwards open door. No want lemme in. Betty get mad. Say: "Harry, you let Minniehokus in right this minute." She swell dish. Say: "You just in time dinner." Me savvy that right. No let on. Just us. Nice lookin' maid wait on table. Harry say she Swede. No savvy Swede. Bime by Harry light wick. Put it under coffee. Brew coffee at table. It in round glass whatnot. When water hot, it shoot up and percolate in other glass whatnot. That hold coffee. Harry do this three time. Coffee made. Swell. Later, we take walk. SEES GRAND OPERA ERA FOR SCREEN

By HARRY BERGMAN

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 11.—(INS.)—Grand opera on the movie screen.

The passionate lines of "Carmen" and the tragic movements of "Aida" heard in thousands of cinema houses up and down America's main street.

Such was the picture of the future visualized here today by Mary Fabian, internationally eminent opera star, who has just arrived in Hollywood for a series of talking picture voice tests.

The synchronized sound film, newest development in cinematic science, will be the medium through which the great musical classics will burst into popularity within the next few years, Miss Fabian believes.

"I expect the 'talkies' to revolutionize the musical world and give grand opera a standing in every community along with jazz," the famous diva predicted.

"Through the 'talkies' the American public can learn the true nature and beauty of grand opera. We will be able to throw away the stiff shirts and evening dress that causes so much misery in grand opera audiences and enjoy a performance of 'Il Trovatore' or 'Pagliacci' as we now enjoy a wild-west thriller on the screen.

"In time it will mean that the demand for grand opera will grow so great that every city will have its own company. This will open a new field for the thousands of music students attempting to make a name in this art. Grand opera will be brought to the front door of every American home."

The faint beginnings of the screen era, predicted by Miss Fabian, are already noticeable in many of the synchronized pictures where music, vocal and instrumental is used.

Miss Fabian's words today stirred considerable speculation in the film colony over the possibility of some day enlisting the services of a Tito Schipa or a Geraldine Farrar in a motion picture version of an opera.

It was also said on the boulevard that many of shadowland's stars are equipped with musical talent and training which would make their transition from the photoplay to the photo-opera comparatively easy.

First German Opera To Be Given Tonight

The German Grand Opera Company arrived in Pittsburgh yesterday and tonight will present "Die Walkure" in Syria Mosque. The performance will feature Mme. Johanna Gadski in the role of Bruennhilde. Ernest Knoch, famous Wagnerian leader, will conduct. On Wednesday night "Tristan and Isolde," Wagner's immortal love lyric, will be given, with a caste including Mary Dierckx as Isolde and Karl Joern as Tristan. Dr. Walter Rabl will conduct. The operas will begin at 7:45 p. m. and no one will be seated during the act, it is announced. Special street car service has been arranged to take care of patrons, as the operas are not over until 11:45 p. m.

M-G-M-Warner Merger Is Denied

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 11.—(AP.)—Officials of both Warner Brothers, Inc., and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer today denied having any knowledge of reports that negotiations were under way in New York for a merger of the two motion picture concerns. Announcement of the pending deal was made here last night by Claude C. Ezzell, of New York, who said he was general sales executive for Warner Brothers. The projected merger would involve $60,000,000, he said.

15 Tenements Fired By Bomb Explosion

JERSEY CITY, Feb. 11.—(INS.)—Fire which spread to 15 tenements, routing a hundred families, was brought under control here early today. The blaze was started by the explosion of a bomb in a fruit store. No lives were reported lost. The flames, whipped by a high wind, gave firemen a stubborn fight. The occupants of the two and three-story tenements were forced to flee the buildings in night dress.

Flood Check Bills Passed by Kansas

TOPEKA, Kan.—Flood control bills for the Kansas basin, which two years ago became a huge watershed for the Mississippi flood, have been passed by the Kansas Legislature. The measures provide for dams, lakes and reforestation.

The Sun-Telegraph Fifteen Cent Pattern

A YOUTHFUL AND PLEASING MODEL.

It is the neck of this design with its graceful tie yoke that makes it a winner. The waist blouses becomingly above the belt and the skirt flares attractively over the center of the front. One could have this style in crepe or in silk tweed. If desired the yoke and belt may be of contrasting material. Printed and plain linen would combine well for this.

The pattern is cut in four sizes: 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. To make the design for a 12 year size will require 2½ yards of 39-inch material. To finish with bias binding put on as illustrated requires 3⅞ yards.

COUPON.

This pattern will be sent on receipt of 15 cents (silver or 2c and 1c stamps). Make number, name, address, etc., plain. Send to Pattern Department, The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Social World Busy With Plans for Debuts of Spring and Fall

IN spite of the allegations of serious-minded folks that the age is living in the present, plans for coming days and anticipations of spring and fall events furnish one's interest nowadays in the social world. Of course with days and days ahead of us, all unmarked by even one social event, the future is all that society news has to offer with the exception of information about Pittsburgh folks who have succumbed to the wanderlust.

Not until April, when spring weddings will add to the attractions of that season, will social events be with us again. Many young folks are planning for spring marriages, I hear, but none has announced definite dates.

Most of our news of the future concerns the debutantes of 1929. And never did I hear of so many plans made for a debutante season. I daresay that never will debs have a more delightful time than will the buds of 1929. For one thing, many of them have been friends since childhood, and their mothers have known each other since their schooldays, too.

ELIZABETH LILLY THOMAS, daughter of Mrs. Isaac B. Thomas, of St. James street, who will be, I've just learned, a 1929 debutante, will come out with some of her most intimate friends. Elizabeth, who is a student at Bryn Mawr College, will have to do her "debutanteing," by the way, during the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays.

Her mother will present her at a luncheon, instead of the formal tea, on December 1 in the Pittsburgh Golf Club. Sister debutantes will be the guests.

Elizabeth belongs to an old Pittsburgh family. She's the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Utleys, and a great granddaughter of Alexander Bradley.

I'VE heard that Helen Pendleton, the charming daughter of Maj. and Alex G. Pendleton, one of Elizabeth Thomas' friends, will come out in Pittsburgh next season. Since her family is out of the city, I haven't heard of any definite plans for her debut.

ANOTHER girl of the same group who probably will be presented to the social world next season, is Lydia Irish, daughter of the Franklin C. Irishes, of Devon road. Mrs. Irish and her daughter are spending the winter in California, I understand.

All these girls I've seen together with Emily Frew, daughter of the William Frews; Virginia Wright, daughter of the Thruston Wrights, Emily's cousin, by the way; and Elizabeth Curry, daughter of the Henry M. Currys, all of whom will be debbies of next year, as I've mentioned before.

MOST of the buds of next year are still in school, either in the East or in Paris or Florence, but some of them are traveling this year or spending the winter down South. Margaret and Anne Rose, daughters of the Don Roses, of Sewickley, who'll make their debut in June, are at Pinehurst, N. C. They and their house guest, Jessamine Goddard, of New York, took part last week in the drag hunt there.

TWO of the debutantes of this season were entertained at a luncheon on Friday, did you know? Mrs. Horace Forbes Baker entertained in her home in Glen Osborn for Jane Edson, daughter of Mrs. John Joy Edson, Jr., and Emily Stuart, daughter of the James Lyall Stuarts, of Sewickley.

THE William Lloyd Standishes are back from their wedding trip to Havana and Florida, and are at home in Sewickley now. Mrs. Standish, need I say, is the former Eleanor McCargo?

THE marriage of Miss Ann Marie Good, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Good, of Darlington road, and Wayne Yontz Scofield, of Wooster, O., son of the Rev. and Mrs. A. B. Scofield, of Fulteney, N. The bride wore a gown of vanilla lace made with a flounced skirt, and her shoulder corsage was of Ward roses, sweetpeas and lilies of the valley. Her maid of honor, Miss Katherine MacCloskey, appeared in spring green lace with a lace cocktail jacket, and her hat was of green felt. She had a shoulder corsage of pink roses and lilies of the valley. William Post, of Wooster, was best man. News for Mothers!

Health element of sunshine that children need now added to a hot breakfast food.

SUNSHINE is nature's greatest tonic! For years the world has known it. But only recently have doctors learned why sunshine is so beneficial. And now, Professor Harry Steenbock of the University of Wisconsin, noted scientist, has gone further. He adds the bone-building factor of sunshine to Quaker Farina, famous breakfast food, by "irradiation" with Ultra-Violet Light!

Vitamin "D" is the name scientists give to this bone-building element of sunshine. Vitamin "D" enables the body to make good use of the lime in foods. Bones and teeth are built of lime. The child who has plenty of Vitamin "D" has normal bone development. Legs are straight and strong. Teeth sound and hard. Appetite is good.

Lacking this magic "sun" vitamin, the child's bone development is often faulty. Bow legs, poor teeth, are common symptoms. The child has poor appetite; is "always catching cold." 90% of city children suffer from sunlight starvation, say authorities. Gray skies, heavy winter clothing, explain why.

So the search has been for new easy ways of providing more "sunshine." Now comes this new discovery. It is irradiation of Quaker Farina by Ultra-Violet Light under the Steenbock Process. Irradiated Quaker Farina contains and can pass on to you the precious Vitamin "D."

Think what this means to children! Their breakfast dish of this famous creamy white heart-of-the-wheat cereal now aids them in a new way no other hot breakfast food can claim to do! Wouldn't you rather have Quaker Farina since this is so? Your grocer can supply you. The irradiated kind looks and tastes the same. And the price is unchanged! NOTE: All Quaker Farina now on grocers' shelves is irradiated even though no mention of it is on the package.

Sunlight means straight, well-developed bodies. Give your children a "dash of sunshine" daily.

Weather Conditions.

High barometer covers much the greater portion of the country this morning, marked by two well defined areas. The one covers the Plains states and the Central valleys, and is centered over Texas; highest barometer, 30.62 inches, at Dallas. The other covers the Plateau section west of the Rockies, highest barometer, 30.60 inches, at Boise, Ida.

As a result of the vast high pressure areas the weather is cold over the entire country, but with a tendency toward rising temperatures over the southern plains and the Central valleys. The freezing line extends beyond the Mexican border, with freezing temperature and killing frost at Corpus Christi, Tex.

The precipitation was light and was limited to light snow over the lakes and rain over the South Atlantic Coast.

River Conditions.

There was little change in the river stages since Saturday morning. Stage at Pittsburgh is 11.8 feet. Dam No. 2, 8.7, and Dam No. 6, 8.7. The dams are up.

ESTELLE TAYLOR'S skin is like velvet.

Lovely Skin Essential Says Movie Director

HOLLYWOOD, Calif.—James Cruze, well-known Hollywood director, agrees with 38 other foremost movie directors that a lovely skin is the first requisite of a girl's charm. "Few people can resist the spell of smooth lovely skin," he says.

"Every woman wants beautiful skin, but a star must have it!" Estelle Taylor, famous screen and stage star, says. And like 442 of the 451 important actresses in Hollywood, she recommends Lux Toilet Soap for keeping the skin charming. "This white fragrant soap is a boon to me in keeping my skin heavenly smooth," she says.

Nine out of ten screen stars depend on Lux Toilet Soap to guard their lovely skin, and it has been made the official soap in the dressing rooms of all the great Hollywood film studios.

. . . HANDS UP!

DO THEY LOOK OLD?

rub a tiny bit of THINC on one hand. See how it instantly whitens the skin, smoothes away every bit of roughness and soothes tiny cracks without making your hand the least bit greasy! Now compare the two hands. The difference is astonishing. Massage the cream into both hands—it makes them as cool and smooth and white as alabaster. No roughness, no discoloration. You might have been folding them demurely in your lap, so little do they show the signs of use.

If one treatment can work such wonders, think what consistent use of THINC Hand Creme will do for your hands! Your charming, youthful hands can be a source of pride.

Make THINC a daily beauty habit—a youth habit. You can get it at any drug store, toilet counter or beauty shop. Approved by Good Housekeeping Institute. It won't cost a penny if you are not delighted with it. Return the jar and your money will be refunded.

NO more prematurely old hands! Never need your hands be red, roughened or coarsened again. Busy as they may be, they can be perfectly protected with a marvelous new kind of massage cream which is guaranteed to keep them soft and white and supple.

THINC Hand Creme (pronounced "think"), is entirely new—not a cold cream, vanishing cream or lotion. It is especially designed to protect your hands, to preserve their precious, youthful beauty.

TRY MAGNESIA FOR STOMACH TROUBLE

To Neutralize Acidity and Fermentation. Prevents Indigestion, Sour, Gassy Stomach.

People who suffer from indigestion usually have tried pepsin, charcoal, drugs and various digestive aids and know these things will not cure their trouble—in some cases do not even give relief.

But before giving up to chronic dyspepsia, just try the effect of a little Bisurated Magnesia—not the ordinary commercial carbonate, citrate or milk, but pure Bisurated Magnesia, which you can obtain from practically any druggist in either powder or tablet form.

Take a teaspoonful of the powder or four compressed tablets with a little water after your next meal, and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous, harmful acid in the stomach which now causes your food to ferment and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn and the bloated or heavy, lumpy feeling that seems to follow most everything you eat. You can enjoy your meals without fear of indigestion.

JAMES J. DAVIS 'MOURNS' FOR OLD JOB

AMBRIDGE, Pa., Feb. 11.—Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, an iron puddler, 25 years ago, delivered "the funeral oration" over his old job today, an oration which recognized the new Aston process that would abolish the human iron puddler.

It was at the ground-breaking for the $10,000,000 plant which the A. M. Byers Company is building near Ambridge. Dr. James Aston, inventor of the process, lifted the first spade of earth for the sidte and then made way for the most famous citizen of Sharon, Pa.

"Think of a secretary of labor, his term expiring March 4, who must now learn a new trade!" Secertary Davis joked. "When your president invited me here he had no idea he was inviting me to deliver the funeral oration over my own job."

The plant is to be devoted entirely to the production of wrought iron by the Aston process.

"They have been trying for 100 years to invent a mechanism to take the place of the human being in front of the puddling furnace," the Secretary continued. "My father and his father before him had heard of such an attempt. At Girdy's Run, Millvale, in the early eighties, they tried out such a machine. All such efforts failed. But now the metallurgist has stepped in and invented a process."

THRONGS VISIT SCHENLEY LIBRARY SUNDAY

MARGARET ALLEN HELEN HICKEY EILEEN JEFFERY ADELE GREENFIELD ESTHER HART

Miss Hickey, 1520 Shady avenue, and Miss Jeffery, 7233 Penn avenue, borrowing books on Sunday afternoon at the main branch, Carnegie Library.

Two patrons of the reading room, which loaned out more than 400 books yesterday as an indication of the city's response to the new policy.

NEW POLICY PRAISED BY VISITORS

Nearly 400 books were taken out yesterday afternoon at the Schenley Park Carnegie Library, and the reading rooms were crowded throughout the afternoon. This was Pittsburgh's response to the new policy of opening the library Sunday afternoon.

The opening of the lending department of the library from 1 until 6 p. m. Sundays was sponsored by Ralph Munn, director of the library. He says that persons visit the library on Sunday afternoons who could not do so at any other time.

Sunday opening of the lending room makes all departments of the central library available Sunday with the exception of the boys' and girls' room. Books may be borrowed or returned as on week-days, and cards from all branch libraries are honored.

Miss Sarah Bradley, first assistant librarian, said yesterday the visitors were strong in their praise of the new policy. She also said the number of books loaned on Sundays probably would equal the week-day average in the near future. Miss Bradley and five assistants are on duty Sundays.

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

by HAVEY J. BOYLE

THE Architectural Club, of Pittsburgh, is the place where you can meet practical men with a decided flair for art. The new clubroom of the Pittsburgh architects is in the May Building, Fifth avenue extension and Liberty avenue. In the clubroom there is a decoration with an interesting history.

This decoration was done by Edward Trumbull, now in New York, and a well-known mural painter. It is entitled "The Three Wise Men," and was originally intended for over Kramer's bar in Graeme street. The painting was done in the days of License Court and someone told the presiding judge that the painting was immoral. The judge in question went to Kramer's and risked one eye and said the painting would have to come down. And down it came. In its place went up another, an Omar Khayyam decoration, which is still in place.

"The Three Wise Men" can still be seen in the Architectural Club and in these days it would cause no commotion at all.

The night was misty from a needle-point rain that made the downtown window panes and the arc lights of the streets glisten. People, forced to be out, were hurrying along to escape the cold dampness. I saw a man standing at Smithfield and Diamond streets, apparently occupied only with watching men and women scurrying along to shelter. His black hat was pulled down well over his head, and his black coat was buttoned high about the collar. I remembered him as having figured in some notoriety during the war days. I wondered at his strange occupation on such a night as he did not have the air of one waiting for someone, but rather the attitude of a man interested in the sights—on such a night. A square later on, I remembered the cloud that had surrounded him in the war days. I remembered that he had been sent to prison as a conscientious objector.

A LOCAL industrial plant owner could not understand why a persistent thief insisted on stealing—of all things—the contents of the fire extinguishers around the plant. After some watchfulness the thief was discovered. The thief had found that the chemical which will put out a fire is also great for taking egg stains off vests and butter splotches off trousers. In fact, the chemical—well here goes, carbon tetra chloride—is used in institutions dedicated to cleaning clothes, and the thief used to take home this chemical so his wife could clean clothes without acquiring a cleaner's bill.

Speaking of cleaning clothes one member of the cleaners' guild has this sign over his place:

My Name is Fink and What Do You Think
I Clean Clothes for Nothink.

A humorous customer, after having a job done, pointed to the sign and said he didn't think he should have to pay, but the cleaner in question replied that the sign was a mis-print—that there should be a question mark after the last word.

JOHN HERNON, in charge of the John Gruber dinner, Thursday night, reports this will be the biggest sports dinner ever held in town. More than 700 reservations already have been made, with indications there will be at least 1,000 guests when the toastmaster, Joseph N. Mackrell, rises to rap for order.

To readers who like interesting books I recommend "The Life of John Marshall," by Beveridge. Bill Hamilton, cashier of the Third National, is a good man to borrow this book from.

2 HURT IN TEAM, CAR CRASH

Two persons were injured and a dozen others were showered with flying glass today and a near panic ensued when a wagon of the Rieck-McJunkin Dairy Company, with the horses frightened and running wild, crashed into the rear of a Bloomfield street car in Penn avenue, near Thirty-ninth street.

The injured are Miss Martha J. Pascoe, 23, of 238 North Dithridge street, a teacher in the Latimer Junior High School, and Leo Abbott, 17, of 98 South Thirteenth street. Both suffered lacerations and bruises.

The horses ran off while the driver, James Murdy, of 2112 Salisbury street, was delivering milk in Woolslayer way, according to police. They turned into Thirty-ninth street, then Penn avenue, and crashed into the rear of the street car, which was taking on passengers.

There was a rush to the car doors as glass of the rear windows was shattered, and most of the passengers suffered bruises and had their clothing torn in the near-panic.

Inspector Asked To Guard Beauty Shops Here

Eployment of a woman inspector of beauty parlors at $1,908 a year is authorized in an ordinance presented to Council today by President James F. Malone.

The measure, sponsored by Enoch Lavender, state president of the Hairdressers and Cosmetologists' Association, Inc., is designed to "protect the public against insanitary beauty parlors."

The office would be self-supporting through fees fixed by city ordinance paid into the public treasury by proprietors and operators of beauty establishments.

2 DIE IN AUTO WRECKS ON ICE

Ice covered streets caused two fatal accidents and serious injuries to four persons in the city and county over the week-end.

Mrs. Mary Macarsek, 24, 351 Chambers street, Clairton, died yesterday in the McKeesport Hospital of a fracture of the skull suffered a few hours earlier when an automobile driven, police say, by Andrew Cavaka, 45, of 809 Warner street, McKeesport, skidded, crashed into a pole and overturned. Cavaka and his wife, Anna Cavaka, suffered serious injuries and were taken to the McKeesport Hospital. The accident occurred in Fifth avenue, McKeesport.

When an automobile he was driving skidded and collided with a taxicab driven by Harvey M. Williams, of 6204 Marchand street, at Wilmot and Halket streets, early yesterday, I. Paffs, 43, of 1236 Beechview avenue, suffered a fracture of the skull which caused his death in the Homeopathic Hospital a few hours later. Williams was ordered to appear before the coroner.

Suffering a fracture of the skull and internal injuries when his automobile skidded into a pole in Monongahela avenue, Glassport, John Puscaw, 44, of 326 Erie street, Glassport, is in a serious condition in his home.

1,500 PLEDGED BY HOLY NAME

Fifteen hundred men took a pledge to reverence the name of the Deity last night at a Holy Name rally in the North Side Carnegie Music Hall. Twenty-four parishes of the North Side and North Boroughs district were represented.

The meeting was opened by Joseph Hepp, who presented the chairman, Thomas F. Scanlon. The Rev. John Hackett, of St. Andrew's Church, offered prayer. Following the singing of the national anthem, addresses were made by John B. Collins, diocesan vice president of the Holy Name Society; William A. Ryan, president of the United Laymen's Retreat League, and the Rev. James M. Delaney, diocesan spiritual director. The Holy Name pledge was presented by the Rev. A. G. Mihn, chaplain of the North Side district.

The Rev. F. J. McCabe and the Rev. Charles Moosman, deans of the district, arranged the rally. Charles Wolff and John O'Neil are executive officers of the Diocesan Union of the Holy Name Society on the North Side.

REPORT ON BLUE LAW DRIVE

The status of a state-wide campaign against the bill introduced in the Legislature for the modification of the blue laws of 1794, was reported at a meeting today of the officers of the Sabbath Association of the Pittsburgh Area. Rev. Dr. George Taylor, Jr., president of the association, announced that Mayor Harry F. Baker, of Philadelphia, had headed a movement in that city which embraces the membership of all the Philadelphia Sabbath observance organizations.

Mayor Baker, the ministers say, will go to Harrisburg March 12, with a large delegation in opposition to modification of the Sunday laws as proposed in the present bill.

"The friends of Sabbath observance are taking no narrow, bigoted view of this matter," declared Dr. Taylor. "We are making a broad, intelligent study of the whole question in the light of modern conditions. We are opposed to commercialism and we are anxious to protect the working man, but we believe that careful study should be given to that side of the matter which would mean a seven-day week for many workers and would deprive a great number of any time for rest on the Sabbath."

It was announced that more than 20 mass meetings would be held in the city and various suburbs in the county next Sunday afternoon to unite the people in upholding the Sunday laws.

A resolution opposing the blue law modification bills was adopted today at the meeting of the United Presbyterian Ministers' Association in the chapel of the Publication Building. The motion, introduced by Rev. Dr. Ira G. McCreary, was unanimously supported. The pastors agreed to urge their congregations to participate in the protest meetings against Sunday law modification next Sunday.

CHURCH SCHOOL COURSE BEGUN

Dr. Frank McKibbin, professor of religious education, University of Pittsburgh, opened a church school training institute last night in the Bellevue Presbyterian Church with an address on "What Is Worship?" Tonight at 7:30 o'clock, Dr. C. C. Kinter, professor of psychology, Pennsylvania College for Women, will speak on "The Psychology of Childhood." Department conferences will be held at 8:40 p. m., under the leadership respectively of Mrs. Archie Holman, Miss Margaret Carter and the Rev. A. J. R. Schumaker, director of Religious Education of the Pittsburgh Baptist Association. The institute is being held under the direction of the Rev. Dr. R. F. Galbreath, pastor, and Mrs. A. L. Cafeman Gets $5,300 For False Arrest

Jack Mose, a restaurant worker at Twenty-sixth and Sarah streets, was awarded a verdict of $5,300 in Common Pleas Court today by a jury that deliberated only 10 minutes on Mose's charge that he had been prosecuted maliciously by Tom Glaros.

Mose contended that he was arrested and jailed for 11 days because Glaros, who conducts a restaurant at 2118 Carson street, accused him of stealing furniture from the Glaros home, an accusation the grand jury ignored.

In good humor, Magistrate John J. Sweeney discharged them. Happier, Ammon and Landers returned to their car with the two friends who had accompanied them.

But Patrolman James Challis was suspicious. He asked for a driver's license. There was none. He arrested the quartet. And then Challis reports, they admitted stealing the car to drive to court. The other two are listed as Gerald and Joseph Howard, of 156 Lamasco street.

M'KECHNIE AT BIBLE SCHOOL

William E. McKechnie, former manager of the Pittsburgh baseball club, sang several solos yesterday at the service of the Callendar Bible School in Malta Temple, Wilkinsburg. His wife was his accompanist. Eugene S. Willis, a member of the class who introduced McKechnie, presented him as a "fundamentalist in baseball."

One hundred and eleven men were present and heard the baseball leader. The entire school had an attendance of nearly 300. The Callendar Bible School is composed of members of the former Callendar class of the South Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, separated from the church through disagreements over teachings. When the class members decided to leave the church, members of their families also left the congregation and the men and their wives and children formed the Callendar school.

FALSE ALARMS END IN CRASH

Three false alarms early today sent city firemen skidding over icy streets, a hose truck being damaged in a collision and the arrest of a man blamed for sounding two of the alarms.

As the hose truck of Engine Company No. 14, summoned by a false alarm, pulled up at Kincaid street and North Pacific avenue this morning, it was rammed and damaged $400, firemen reported, by a truck of the National Bread Company, 6400 Penn avenue, which slid down a steep slope of Pacific avenue.

Frank Bower, 21, of 601 Fifty-second street, driver of the baking company truck was arrested, charged with reckless driving.

Elwood Wilmer, 26, of 1403 Sterrett street, was arrested after two false alarms had been sounded from the Homewood district within 20 minutes. He was taken into custody by Battalion Fire Chief John Frazier and his men, who scouted through the neighborhood after the second alarm.

At a hearing before Magistrate W. J. Soost in Frankstown Avenue Police Court, Wilmer denied sounding the alarms. He was fined $25 or 30 days in the workhouse.

Plans were made to combat the proposal when the railways company attempts to put it in force.

Family at Theater, Thieves Get 2 Suits

Two suits of clothes, valued at $100, were stolen from the home of William Cohen, 219 Barth avenue, Mt. Lebanon, Saturday night, Chief of Police Charles C. Baldwin reports. While the Cohens were at a movie thieves entered the home by breaking a glass panel of the front door and unlocking the door from the inside.

Will Rogers in London

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.

See where Mr. Hoover has gone over to see Inventor Edison, to see if he can't invent a cabinet that will please just even five per cent of the people that wasn't named on it. If he can, then he will be a real inventor.

New York can't sleep at night, wondering what the Stock Market will open at. Radio just had its usual amount of static over the week-end, Steel turned out no product and received no new orders during Sunday, Montgomery Ward peddled nothing since Saturday, yet they will all change prices.

Why does this have to happen? They say it's for the good of the country. Now you tell one.

Yours, WILL.

How to Keep Well

By Royal S. Copeland, M. D.

Rage Spasms Upset the Entire System

WHY is it bad for your health to fly into a violent fit of anger and particularly to indulge in frequent spells of anger?

DR. COPELAND

If anger were merely a state of mind it wouldn't be so bad. If it were purely an emotion, moving or stirring up the mind alone, it might be stimulating and even healthful because it is stimulating. But anger does a lot more to you than merely to stir the mind. The casual observer can tell by your very appearance and actions that you are "mad as a hatter."

Your face is flushed, perhaps almost purple. You double up your fists, clenching them so tightly the knuckles are white. All your muscles are tense and hard. Even your breathing is disturbed, so much perhaps that you snort like a mad bull. You scream and yell, perhaps act like a crazy man.

You see at once that anger is a lot more than a state of mind. It involves the whole body and every organ in it.

I would not ask you to be calm and placid, indifferent to everything about you. To be perfectly colorless and absolutely unemotional is an undesirable state.

It is important as you go through life, to have habits and to follow practices that will make for your own welfare as well as the happiness of those about you. Happiness and contentment, founded on right conduct, mean much more than their effect upon your mind.

As a matter of fact, conduct of this sort will contribute materially to your physical welfare. The psychologists speak about "euphoria." In general terms this is the sense of well-being. The sacred writer puts it another way. Speaking of wisdom, he said, "Her ways are ways of pleasantness and all her paths are peace."

As I have said, this manner of living contributes materially to the smooth operation of all the organs. The functions are normal. With the lack of friction the machinery of the body does not wear out.

Take heed that I am not advocating such a calmness of spirit that the enthusiasms are unknown. These add to the physical welfare just as the frost of a September morning or the balmy breezes of a May day stimulate the body to action. The reaction to such a stimulous is sure to be helpful to every cell and fibre of your being.

I know how hard it is to control anger and to prevent giving in to it. It is always easier to follow the line of least resistance. It is easier by far to give way to the angry impulses than to attempt to control them. But you should make this effort and control yourself. You must do this to save your heart and blood vessels and to prolong your life.

His Winter -:- By Truda Dahl

B-R-R-R-R! It's so cold! Cold and snow and sleet and winds, and through it all he has to plod day after day, while his thoughts are far away in the sunny Southland! If only he could be there, enjoying the warm ocean and the golden sands! But, no, he has to stay in the cold so that his loved ones may be safely down there in the nice warm sunshine!

What a difference, his Winter and theirs! Theirs gay and carefree, days filled with sunshine and happiness, laughter and dancing; his, work and cold and snow and weary evenings alone! But he doesn't mind, for he knows that his dear ones are enjoying themselves. That's what Love does! Sacrifices itself that the object of its love may have everything possible. And always where there's Love you find contentment.

LOVE'S AWAKENING

A Continuation of Love's Embers

Mystery of "Janet Rawdon" Deepens

LILLIAN nodded emphatically when I asked her if she were sure Mary was the person whom she associated with her dim memory of the name "Janet Rawlon."

"That's the impression I have," she said, "but, of course, it's absolutely nothing to go on."

"But what ought we to do about it?" I asked.

"Nothing at present," Lillian answered promptly. "If this 'Janet Rawdon' is a blackmailer we've got to catch her without Mary's knowing anything about it. If she has such a hold on Mary that the child's turning over most of her allowance to her, Mary wouldn't dare give her away. We'll just have to keep our eyes open and watch the girl without her suspecting us. It's fairly easy out here, but it's likely to be harder when you get into the city. However, there are four of us, you, the Dicky-bird, Harry and me. We ought to be able to keep cases on one girl."

"Mary doesn't go away from the farm very often, does she?" Katherine asked.

"No," Lillian answered, "and practically all of her journeys are made in the company of our royal neighbors of Trees and Transvania and the reigning prince of the House of Veritzen, all of whom, I thinks, we can acquit of black mail."

I smiled as I visualized slender stately Princess Olina, of Transvania, and gallant Prince Georges, of Trees, still cherishing their incognito, while they played at romance with Young Noel Veritzen and Dicky's lovely young niece.

"Mary takes some long drives with Prince Georges occasionally," Katherine ventured. "Might she not take advantage of those drives to meet this Janet Rawdon? She's clever enough to make Georges believe the moon was a cheese, colored like Joseph's coat."

"Going green one better," Lillian supplemented. "There's a grain of thought in that, Katrina. There's one thing certain. She isn't making those checks out to 'Janet Rawdon' and keeping them in her scrap book. She's sending them or taking them to the woman. We've got to watch her mail and her journeys, if possible, I know," as I moved restlessly, "I hate it as much as you do, but it's got to be done. However, we can't do anything more about it tonight, so let's switch the subject. I took a base advantage of Harry on that moonlight drive, Madge, and cajoled him into toleration, if not approval, of the Brixton visit. He only made one stipulation—that he must be absent when they come—to which, of course, I agreed. I imagine that's what he wanted to get Dicky out for—so he could let off steam and swear comfortably over the thing. Dicky knew— Tom—you see."

Her voice faltered as it always does when she speaks of Marion's father whose memory she has so much reason to execrate, and I spoke quickly.

"Katherine is completely at sea over this, you know."

Lillian looked up quickly, her attention diverted as I had hoped.

"Oh, sorry! Katrina, I meant to tell you, of course, Madge, won't you outline the facts. I hate even to repeat them."

"Lillian has had a letter," I told Katherine, "which disturbs her very much. It's from an old business associate of Marion's father who, years ago, swindled Mr. Morton out of a large sum of money. His wife, however, was one of Lillian's best friends, years ago. But why not show Katherine the letter? Then she'll be able to judge for herself."

Horoscope

Tuesday, February 12

THE planetary influences for this day are denominated by astrologers as "mixed," meaning that some excellent testimonies of prosperity and advancement are beshadowed by influences of delay, frustration and disappointment. The health may be responsible for this, or the tendency to indulge in tempest and tumult; or even the tendency to quibble or fret and fume over trifles. Be careful of these in employment or with those in authority.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year of opportunity and promotion if they will refrain from ill-governed speech and act and safeguard their physical condition. The choice is theirs to win or lose.

A child born on this day may need an early training and discipline in order to instill self-control and good nature, as it may have a contradictory nature. With restraint there are promises of success and good position in life.

Nothing with God can be accidental.—Longfellow.

What Will you do When your Children Cry for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost daily need of its comfort. And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved, or diarrhea checked. A vegetable product; a baby remedy meant for young folks. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless they may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use; in emergencies, or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that Baby becomes fretful, or restless, Castoria was never more popular with mothers than it is today. Every druggist has it.

Meditations of a Wife

BY HELEN ROWLAND

When Mary Got Wise

HELEN ROWLAND

MARY had a little hair,
She cut it short and plain,
Now Mary's waiting sadly till
That hair grows long, again!

Mary had a little skirt.
She bobbed it to her knees,
Now Mary's sewing ruffles on
That skirtlet, if you please!

Mary had a little line—
The sex-appealing brand,.
They loved her—and they left her,
Yet, she did not understand!

Mary had a little nerve,
No chaperon could halt her!
It got the men all going, but
Alas, not to the ALTAR!

Mary had a little way
Of looking very naughty.
You ought to see that girl, today!
So dignified! AND haughty!

Mary had a little jolt.
First one man, then another,
Wooed and cooed and kissed awhile—
Then said he'd be "a brother."

Mary had a little hunch.
She's changed her line. Don't STOP HER!
She's going to be a "lady" now,
And very, VERY proper!

Mary had a little while
To find her "dope" was wrong.
Now proper stuff is all the style—
And Mary's going strong?

Mary had a little fling—
But underneath the rose,
She'd rather have a wedding ring,
As everybody knows!

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Don't Apologize!

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:
Will you kindly give a ruling as to whether or not it is considered proper for one to excuse himself to the office force after sneezing? We take it for granted, of course, that each employe is engaged in his or her occupation and that the incident does not attract particular attention. J. B.

NO, this is not necessary and is not proper. There is no reason why a person should ask to be "excused" for sneezing.

Formal Acceptance

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:
When invitations to a bridge party or shower are sent on one's personal calling card, how should the acceptance or regrets be sent? READER.

A FORMAL acknowledgment, written on the first page of a double sheet of letter paper, should be sent. Like this:

Miss Evelyn Breet
accepts with pleasure
Mrs. Allen Witherby's kind invitation
on Friday, the First of March at three o'clock.

The Hostess Pays

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:
1. Is it proper for a girl to buy her boy friend a ticket for a school amusement and receive money for it?

2. Is it proper to take the money in advance when asked to buy him a ticket? (That is, if he does not attend that school.) ANXIOUS.

IF she issues the invitation, the girl herself buys the tickets and pays for them. She does not allow the boy, who is her guest, to reimburse her.

2. No, not if she issues the invitation. If the boy is coming on his own responsibility and has asked her to buy the ticket as a convenience, he pays her for it, of course.

"Hello" Too Informal

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:
1. I am only a little over 15 years of age, but frequently of late I have met many young married people, most of whom are not over 23 or 24 years of age. What I wish to know is—should I stand up when one of these persons comes into the room?

2. Should I stand when an 18-year-old person comes into the room?

3. When I meet a friend of my mother's on the street, should I say "Hello, Mrs. Brown," or would it be more proper to say "How do you do, Mrs. Brown?" I prefer the latter.

4. Do you think I should write smaller and closer together? D. R. C.

YES, when one of the women comes into the room.

2. No, not necessarily. But you may if you wish. And, of course, they will be delighted if you do!

3. "How do you do, Mrs. Brown" is correct. It would be rude for you to say "Hello, Mrs. Brown."

4. Yes.

'LOVE FINE ART,' SAYS PASTOR; TELLS WHY

"A marriage license is not a license at all. It is an opportunity for chivalry," the Rev. Dr. John Ray Ewers declared yesterday in his open forum discussion on "The Ethics of Married People" at the East End Christian Church. He suggested the following eight secrets for happy married life:

1. There must be physical health and fitness. I approve of a doctor's certificate in every case. I oppose the marriage of defectives.
2. Psychological fitness. The study of psychoanalysis shows that many people are unfit to marry because of mental states.
3. Necessary knowledge, given by parents, physicians or other trained persons prior to marriage.
4. Freedom. Neither must seek to dominate. Each should have an opportunity for a career, if desired.
5. The necessity for personal enrichment. Each must constantly discover something new and interesting in the companion.
6. Common interests. Love is a fine art and cannot be blundered into.
7. The need of frequent vacations apart. People tend to get on each other's nerve. Therefore, there must be some arrangement for separation in time and space.
8. Religion. The vast values of faith in God, immortality and moral responsibility sustain and inspire in many a difficulty."

Floods Damage Australia.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Feb. 11.—(A.P.)—The worst floods in 40 years are reported from northern New South Wales. Ten inches of rainfall in some districts destroyed thousands of cattle and resulted in serious conditions in the business centers of Gloucester, Taree and Kempsey.

A Medieval Murder Mystery

By Evelyn Johnson and Gretta Palmer

IN the fourteenth century the way of the murderer was easy and profitable. Not only were there no snooping inspectors with finger print dust, and no meddling coroners, but the killing of one's known enemies was a recognized and respected occupation. The temperaments of the three brothers of the house of Marchau were admirably adapted to such an age.

Rupert, Nigel and William were the three sons of the rich and noble lord of Marchau, a small duchy in Central Europe. The boundaries in that part of the world today are volatile enough to dishearten any schoolboy; at that time they were practically non-existent. In order to substantiate your claim to any piece of land you might find desirable, you had only to do away with its owner in a tidy and efficient manner and make whatever provision for the widow accorded with her charms.

The father of the three boys was a formidable fighter who had gathered together a very respectable number of estates in this manner. He was surrounded, for the most part, by weak vassal-lords who paid tribute to him without a whimper. There was one dangerous neighbor, but as he had a daughter of some charm, and no sons, it was agreed that the two duchies should be peacefully joined by the marriage of Elaine to one of the sons of Marchau.

BUT which one? It was a matter for delicate speculation. The eldest was Rupert, but he was a pale, clever young man and his father dreaded that slippery thing called intellect. Either of the others would have been far more acceptable as an heir. Marchau at last announced that which ever of the sons should succeed in unhorsing the other two at the next tournament should be his heir and win the hand of Elaine. The arrangement seemed to satisfy everybody, and if Rupert was a trifle morose as the day for the tournament drew near, it was considered the natural regret he must feel for having neglected to cultivate as assiduously as his brothers the art of tilting.

William and Nigel, however, were less sanguine over the outcome. In fair combat they had nothing to fear from Rupert, but each suspected that this melancholy elder brother might try to dispose of them both by foul play and win the lady by default. His past record did not reassure them. From fear and hatred they were banded together, and on the eve of the tournament the three sat wrapped in a sullen silence.

MODERN methods of physical training had not been introduced at this date, and by 9 o'clock each of the brothers was deep in his cups. Their father had withdrawn, leaving them alone in the great hall of his castle. William, who had a strong religious streak, retired to his room shortly afterwards to spend the night in prayer for a happy outcome. Nigel and Rupert were left alone. During the course of the evening Rupert left the hall and made the long journey to the wine casks to replenish the flagons that were empty. Shortly afterwards shrill screams came from the bowels of the castle. But as everyone imagined they were the usual shouts of revelry, each man growled at his neighbor and returned to sleep.

In the morning the preparations for the tournament were stopped short by the depressing discovery that each of the combatants had apparently been overtaken by death during the night. Nigel was found in the great hall, his sword drawn and bloody, and on his lips were burns showing that he had been poisoned. There were no wounds. In the recess that formed his prie-dieu, William was found dead, a poisoned dagger sticking in his back, his head still bent in prayer. On the tip of the dagger's handle was a large spot of wax. Though the many tapers he had offered to some prejudice saint were now burnt out, they were not in a position to drip on the dagger. Of Rupert not the slightest trace could be found. The entire castle was searched without avail. When it was found that a suit of armor was also missing it was supposed by the old lord that Rupert might have ridden away during the night. But the only way from the castle was over the drawbridge, and this, as every one knew, could not be lowered without its screeching awakening the whole castle.

What happened to the three brothers?

Merely Margy, An Awfully Sweet Girl

Story by Lloyd Mayer By John Held, Jr.

ARAB, YOU LOOK AWFULLY SILLY, GOING TO FLORIDA IN A BIG DOG SKIN FUR COAT! YES, SILLY!
I'D LOOK A LOT MORE SILLY IF I DIDN'T WEAR THIS FUR COAT!
YOU'RE GOING TO BE ALL HOT AND BOTHERED!
I LOANED MY SUIT TO ONE OF THE FELLOWS AT THE FRAT HOUSE, AND THIS OLD YACHT SAILED BEFORE HE BROUGHT IT BACK, ALL I'VE GOT ON UNDER THIS COAT IS ½ A SUIT OF PAJAMAS!

"My dear, you've never OBSERVED anything so POSitively CRYPtic as the aspect of ARab coyly brandishing a DECK swab on this YACHT of Mr. WEALTHington's, STILL enVELoped in this giGANtic DOGskin COAT, my dear, because I mean he ACtually looked like NOTHing HUman! But I honestly thought I'd have conVULsions or something because when I REMonstrated passionately with him about the situation and FIRMly told him he looked FRIGHTfully SIL going to FLORida in this odd garment, my dear, he replied that he'd look heaps MORE inane without it because he said he didn't have anything on UNder it but a HALF portion of paJAmas—can you COPE with it? REALly, my dear, I was emBARrassed to TEARS at that point because can you iMAGine anything more rePULsive, sort of? But, my dear, I was ALL-of-a-bib-and-TUCKer about something TERRibly exciting that happened one night after DINner when we were all kind of VAGUEly sitting aROUND because I mean I was too imPRESSED about it and all, only I wouldn't BREATHE it to anybody but YOU, my dear, because I think LOADS of girls are perfect HELL cats about things like that because they're MADly JEALous of you or something, my dear—I mean I ACtually DO!"

NANCY DEANE

Nancy's Father Dies and John Blair Asks Her To Marry Him

CHAPTER XXXI.

DR. PEABODY said that Monty Deane was going to die. Two days after Nancy had hurried to her father's bedside, reading and re-reading and re-reading the crumpled yellow paper with the words—come home, your father, Montgomery Deane, is here—the tall old doctor came down from the room where Monty lay to say that the crisis would soon come.

He was very weak, the doctor said, and he would have to be watched every minute, because there was no knowing what anyone so addicted to drugs might do.

He said he would stop in again that evening. The three of them followed Dr. Peabody to the door, Darry O'Day bringing up the rear. It seemed he was the only one who had words for the doctor then, and his wife, suspected he would say the wrong thing.

"Ye know what that sick man is, don't ye, doc? They do be sayin' he's the wayward son of a gintleman. He's Nancy's fa—"

"Darry O'Day, will the day ever come when ye know enough to keep your mouth shut? Will ye begone?"

Old Dr. Peabody only smiled and became suddenly interested in tying his faded muffler. To all appearances he hadn't heard. Nancy remembered the old saying, "there's none so deaf as those who won't hear."

Once the doors were closed Mrs. O'Day vented her wrath on her carpet-slippered spouse.

"Don't be a dodderin' idjit all your days," she scolded. "Don't ye know that if the neighbors be gettin' this 'twill spread all over the town? Can't ye let things run their own course without forcin' 'em on? Darry O'Day, you're a born fool!"

"Oh no, Muddy. Don't say that," Nancy cried. "What does it matter anyway. What's the use in trying to hide the story? If that man's my father, he is, and if he's a tramp and a dope addict, well, we've faced other things. We can face this."

Darry had vanished into the kitchen and Nancy went on: "Don't worry, Muddy, we won't say a word until the man upstairs is well enough to speak for himself. And I'll not leave you, ever, ever. You're my mother, and your name is my name. You've been father and mother and everything to me. You're the darlingest person in the world, but sometimes I think you are a little hard on Darry. You jump at him so."

"Jump at him! It's more jumpin' at he needs. He's plagued me for forty years. Did ye hear him say he was a plasterer by trade. A plasterer, indeed! He told that to your father. Pretendin' always."

But in spite of her protestations, Nancy felt in her heart that all too soon she must lose her foster parents. They could not follow her into the life that Fate had patterned for her. She only prayed that they would understand.

One thing was troubling her and that was her inability to stop thinking of Howard Wescott. She had only been away from him a few days—a few days in which she had suffered the shock of finding that her father was alive, a poor suffering wretch, tormented with a craving for drugs. Of meeting her grandmother who did not know that she had a grandchild and who probably thought her son, Monty, was long dead. And still Wescott was always just on the borderline of her thoughts.

"A big bum," Ginger and Vic had called him.

What did they mean—a big bum? She only knew he had been kinder to her than anyone outside Mud and Darry. She could close her eyes and feel his kisses. She had fought against him, but now she knew they had thrilled her.

Fight the thought as much as she would, Nancy knew Wescott could make her his slave and if she had to make a choice she would gladly renounce everything for the honest love of a man like that.

But could his love be honest? The thought tormented her.

He could be cruel. She had seen evidences of that, and yet she even found herself admiring the decision with which he exercised his cruelty. He could hurt her, and still she couldn't hate him for it. Some primitive urge seemed to be welling up within her.

Sometimes her imagination was on fire. It seemed that in the last few days she actually ached to see him again, to have him look at her. Right then she believed he could have dragged her away by her hair and she would not hate him for it.

Feelings like these kept coming to her and she seemed unable to beat them down. She began to be ashamed of her own thoughts.

How quiet the house seemed now. Mrs. O'Day had gone back to her kitchen and Darry had shuffled off. The silence was more than Nancy could stand. She felt that her hands and her brain ought to be doing something. The very deadness of the street made her want to scream.

She longed to get away, back to Pittsburgh, back in the office of Howard Wescott. She felt like a traitor.

"Oh God, help me please, to be decent and not to forget I love Mud and Darry," she prayed.

Then she ran up the narrow stairs to low ceilinged rooms above. At the door of her own room she stopped to look at Monty Deane. He was awake, and smiled wanly.

"Come in, girl. I wont to talk to you. Sit down."

"So you're my daughter," he begin, as she sat by the bed, "you're Julie's girl, and mine. Julie was like you when I first knew her, poor Julie—"

He stopped, but did not turn away his eyes. She noticed how enlarged the pupils were, so big that his eyes weren't gray now, but a shining, bluish, black.

"I'm a broken down-and-outer now, girl. I guess I'm through. Life has been pretty rotten, and I've gone pretty low in the last 19 years, lower than an innocent girl like you will ever know. Nineteen years ago I defied my father and left his home. I thought Julie was dearer to me than anything in the world—

"Well, in less than three months I left her. What my father said was right. He told me my infatuation would die as quickly as it had been born. He wanted me to annul the marriage. He was proud, and I was his only son. He said if I went with Julie I need never come back, and if I did come it would be crawling to beg his forgiveness.

"Well, child, I've gone low, but I have never crawled on my knees to ask for help yet. When I get out of here I am going to leave for the place I came from. There is nothing I can give you but disgrace. These people have been good to you. You've never seen your grandparents, have you. These people say you haven't. They've never claimed you—"

It was a long speech for a man just snatched from the brink of eternity. His face was the color of putty.

"Don't talk now," Nancy said, "some other time you can tell me about it."

But Monty Deane was insistent. He motioned for her to stay where she was.

"If ever you see my parents, don't tell them I was like this. Tell them something different. You wouldn't let them know I was like this, would you?"

There was a desperation, such a pleading in his voice that Nancy stood, backing toward the door, afraid he might jump up. He began to flounder, his lips were drawn tight as though he were suffering dreadful pain.

"Don't go! Don't go!"

He twisted the words out, and then relaxed, the spasm over. There were little flecks of foam at the corners of his mouth. Nancy sat down again and after a moment of heavy breathing he started talking again.

"You are my child, and the granddaughter of Montgomery Deane," he muttered, "my father is a very rich man. But he's hard, money hard, and proud. He comes from a long line of money-proud people, who put gold above everything. Above God, even.

"Well, he's got his money and he's lost everything else. He's lost his own soul, if the truth were known. And he's sent his only son to hell, to hell; to hell!"

He sat up and began shaking his fists wildly. There was a mad look in his eyes.

Nancy was beginning to be terrified. Why didn't Mrs. O'Day come? It seemed the neighbors must hear him shouting.

She handed him a drink and soothed him as best she could. He lay back on the pillow, still, except for the eternal movement of his long fingers.

"They sent me to hell, but by all that's right they have no right to send you there, too. You're his granddaughter. I'm going to get out of here, and go back where I came from, but I want to go to my father and tell him who you are. But you are not to tell him I was like this. You can make up a story—say that Julie must have taken you away long before you remembered your father. Tell him your mother told you I died—anything.

"And take this ring. He will know it. My mother will know it. It was hers. Say that Julie left it for you when she died. They mustn't know that it was I who gave it to you."

The effort of pulling off a woman's small ring, set with a sapphire, was too much for Monty Deane, and he held up his thin hand so that Nancy might draw it from his little finger.

"That ring belonged to my mother," he said. "Her name is in it."

Nancy held the worn gold ring to the light to make out the inscription inside. The letters, half obliterated, she read the name of Caroline Glendenning, her grandmother's maiden name.

Nancy thought of that other ring in the dresser drawer, across the room, the ring Monty had given Julie. In the box with it was their wedding certificate, and the tiny envelope with the bit of pale gold hair.

"If ever you need money or help, take this ring to your grandparents," he said, "but don't do it until I'm out of here. I can give you nothing—they can give you everything, and they may feel different about things now."

Nancy turned the sapphire ring over and over in her hand.

"Why Father," she said, "a sapphire denotes repentance. It's lovely!"

It was the first time she had called him father. The word brought a smile to his lips.

"Repentance, eh?" he said. "there's no repentance in me. My soul is dead!"

That night Monty Deane died.

In that little muslin curtained room that was his daughter's, he had passed out of this world with no one knowing just when he had breathed his last.

Mrs. O'Day had watched at his bedside the fore part of the night; Darry from midnight on. He died sometime after 1 o'clock in the morning.

"Oh, my God!" Mrs. O'Day exclaimed when Darry called her and Nancy. She took a hand of both and the three knelt to pray.

While the spectacular death of Julie Abbott had brought the reporters to the O'Day cottage, the death of the man who was once her husband caused only a minimum of interest in Washington. Hardly anyone knew he was there, not even Mrs. O'Day's friends.

Until dawn, on the night that Monty Deane died, Mrs. O'Day and Nancy had talked and pondered what to do. They decided they would have him buried beside Julie, as unceremoniously as possible. Deep in Maggie O'Day's heart was the hope that now Nancy was hers forever, that there would be no one ever coming to claim her again.

Nancy wondered if now was the time to confess her relationship to Caroline Glendenning-Deane. The thought terrified her. She could not tell why. But she knew she could not go to Mrs. Deane—not now, not yet.

Wasn't it better to write finis to the story of Monty Deane and Julie Abbott? To let the dead past keep its secrets? What if the newspapers should get the story of Monty's identity now. Could she stand having her picture in every paper in the state—everywhere? Couldn't she go on alone, letting things work out as they would?

So she didn't tell Mrs. O'Day she had been in the Deane home, had met Mrs. Deane. Some force stronger than her own strong will stopped her.

The Rev. Mr. Hemingway officiated at the funeral of Monty Deane as he had officiated at Julie Abbott's.

Just as she had turned her eyes from his face at her mother's funeral to look into the blue eyes of John Blair, so Nancy turned from the minister now to look at John again.

What would they have done without his help, she thought.

He was the man who had asked her to marry him. He had been kindness itself to her and Mud and Darry during the last few days. He was kindness itself, manhood itself, Nancy thought.

All at once a realization of the worth of John Blair came flooding into her mind.

He was a man, a man, but oh! why did the face of Howard Wescott always come between her and him. Even now, at her father's grave, a picture of Wescott came into her mind.

She bit her lips to hold back her tears, but it was no use.

"I'm wicked," she said. "Wicked."

Just a week later John Blair again asked Nancy to marry him.

"I want you," he said. "I want to love you and to help you. And I love your Mud and Darry, too. I want to help them."

She could feel her two small hands being crushed in his large ones.

"John," she said, "I think I could love you, too, but differently, John. So differently."

"How differently?"

"Just differently. I could love your strength, and your bigness, and your gentleness, John. And I could love you have treated Mud and Darry and for your understanding. But, oh!—"

"Oh what?"

"I've only started doing things. It's only lately that I feel I am learning things and seeing a little of life. And John, I don't feel ready yet."

"Ready for what?"

"Give me five or six months, John. A year. I'll answer you then."

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

COUGARS BLANK PIRATES, 3 TO 0

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

New School Conference. Should Help Athletics. Giants Ready to Start.

Fields Looks Winner. Wright Robin Holdout. Bancroft Accepts Cut.

FIRST BALLERS GO SOUTH TOMORROW

THE new Western Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Conference, once it begins to function, promises to be a boon to high school athletics in general, and to football in particular, in this territory. Whether the organization recently formed goes along with the W. P. I. A. L. or breaks away from that body, it appears almost certain to succeed.

Elmer Carroll

There are some who believe that in certain respects the W. P. I. A. L. has outlived its usefulness toward accomplishing the objects for which it was formed. There is no question that its league has served a fine purpose in codifying high school athletic rules and furnishing a firm basis for eligibility law-making. But at present the circuit is held to be far too unwieldly, with its 103 members, of various grades of high schools, making it practically impossible to pick a real, honest-to-goodness champion in any branch of sport.

These features, it is contended, detract from the interest in, and consequently from the money-making powers of, the organization. The league's supporters point out that the ideals of the W. P. I. A. L. are altruistic, but somehow or other it takes money to bring about a realization of even such things.

THE 10 schools that signified their willingness to join the new Conference, and will be charter members once they have received the official o. k. of their boards and authorities, are among the most powerful in the W. P. I. A. L. They are the schools that have had the strongest football teams of the last 10 years.

It would be difficult, it is said, for the league to block the formation of the new organization, if such a maneuver should be attempted, as there are reported to be many schools in the W. P. I. A. L. at present that would refuse to break with any of the 10 Conference institutions, for the reason that it is with these schools only that money can be made at the gate.

ELMER CARROLL, former Washington & Jefferson end, and at present head coach at Wilkinsburg High School; Foxy Miller, former Pitt halfback star and now coach at Turtle Creek High, and Ralph Gardner, graduate manager of athletics at New Castle High, are the members of the committee that will go into the intricate details of drawing up a set of by-laws and eligibility rules for the new body and getting all the loose ends of the proposition into shape for final adoption.

Foxy Miller

These men are wise in the way of athletics, from the standpoint of both the coach and the business man. There is no doubt that they will provide a sensible code and handle the affairs of the project, while it is in its state of infancy, in a highly satisfactory manner.

THE Conference will not be permitted to become too large. In fact, it is possible that the final membership will be limited to 10 schools. At present, there is talk of awarding 12 franchises. Wilkinsburg, Washington, Charleroi, Turtle Creek, Jeanette, Har-Brack, New Castle, Greensburg and the two city schools, Schenley and Westinghouse, are the charter members. The Beaver Valley is not represented so far, but if any one of the valley schools is taken in, it is the consensus of opinion that it will be the up and coming Aliquippa organization.

IN THE event there are 12 teams in the league, the rules will call for the playing of six Conference football opponents each year by each member. If the membership limit is set at 10, only five games will be demanded. It is believed that once this Conference gets going, there will be an increase in interest and a corresponding increase in the very necessary gate receipts.

It will be a compact, workable body, with small chance of there being a muddle of championship contenders at the close of the season. And its sponsors predict that in the majority of cases if the Conference remains within the W. P. I. A. L. the Conference champion will be the league champion also.

YOU have seen baseball players, when their team was leading, hurrying to get the required number of innings completed before a threatened rainfall could put a stop to a game, but New York contributed a new one the other night—the spectacle of two hockey clubs hustling to finish a contest before the ice could melt.

During the afternoon preceding the game between the Americans and Black Hawks the ice plant at Madison Square Garden broke down, and though it was possible to freeze the playing era, it could not be kept frozen for any great length of time, so that for a while it was thought a postponement would be necessary.

THE TEAMS succeeded in going through with the game, but only by taking unusual steps, and even then they barely "made it." First the scheduled skating races and exhibitions of fancy skating between periods were cut out, and then the rest spaces were shortened to such an extent that the players were given only a mere breathing spell between drives. Even then, the skates of the puckmen sometimes went through the thin ice and scraped on the concrete. The Americans were forced to change their skates twice, and seven pairs of steel blades were broken or otherwise rendered useless.

John McGraw

IF YOU haven't given any thought during the present wintry conditions to the close approach of another baseball season, you will realize the nearness of the summer sport from the fact that the start of the first major league club for its spring training camp is only 24 hours off. That means the end of the off-season and the beginning of preparations for the new pennant races.

As usual, John McGraw's Giants will be the first to be on their way. McGraw always plays for the jump, seeking to have his club in the best condition possible to take advantage of the opportunity for a flying start in the early games against the three other Eastern teams, which are the weakest in the National League. Accordingly the advance guard of Giants, consisting of three rookies—Pitchers Curley Ogden and Floyd Johnson and Infielder John Kavanaugh—will leave New York tomorrow for San Antonio, Tex.

IT IS expected that by Friday all of the Giant battery men, 15 pitchers and five catchers, with three recruit infielders added, will be on hand for the first workout. The Cubs will be the second big league team to get away, Joe McCarthy being scheduled to lead his first squad out of Chicago on Thursday for Catalina Island.

One week from tonight the Pittsburgh club will take its place in the spring parade. At that time the Pirate vanguard will depart for Paso Robles. Three days later the Yankees and Dodgers will swing into line, and at short intervals thereafter the other teams will hit the Southward trail. It won't be long now.

WHILE it is one thing to develop a logical challenger for the welterweight fistic crown, and another thing to induce

Pirates' Assistant Trainer Packs Trunks for Training Trip

NO BUTTONLESS UNIFORMS

George (Chauff) Asten, the Pirates' assistant trainer, is getting things ready for the departure of the advance squad of the locals for the Paso Robles (Cal.) training camp one week from today. Here he is seen sorting out the uniforms and making necessary repairs prior to packing the garments away in the trunks in the clubhouse at Forbes Field.

LARGEST AND SMALLEST SHIRTS

Earl Sheely, new first baseman, obtained from the Seattle club, owns the largest uniform among the Pirates, while Sparky Adams, diminutive second baseman, wears the smallest one. Here are the two bits of wearing apparel as they shape up in size. One of Asten's duties is to see that all of the belongings of the various players are kept together.

PAUL WANER'S SHOES

In the above picture, Asten seems to have enough shoes for an entire regiment, or at least a modern big league baseball squad, but he says appearances are deceiving and that all of these "dogs" belong to Paul Waner, star outfielder of the Corsairs. Wonder when Paul finds time to wear all of the pairs and who breaks 'em in for him?

By JESS CARVER

A rather indigo tinged contemplation of the week-end in college basketball brings one around to the conclusion that the boys of the good old tri-state district didn't do themselves much good.

Pitt, Wash-Jeff, Duquesne and West Virginia took it on the chin in road games. Can you imagine those four all flopping on the same night? Well, they did. The Irish secured revenge for the defeat suffered out in the Stadium Pavilion a year ago by beating Pitt at South Bend. Penn State, trailing for the greater part of the contest, overhauled the Presidents at State College and won with points to spare. Washington and Lee started West Virginia off on the wrong foot on the Mountaineers' first start of a hard road trip by beating the Stadsvoldians, 42-37, at Huntingdon.

DUKES TOPPLED

And down in the Big Town, as New York has been kiddingly nicknamed, the Dukes stumbled again and went ker-flop. (You expected it to be boom, didn't you?) Nat Holman secured revenge for the defeat his City College basketeers suffered at the hands of the Dukes a year ago. Nat (I call him Nat, when I'm in Pittsburgh and he's in New York) swore by the gods that he'd take the Dukes this time, and told his schedule-maker to get the Dukes again if it was the last thing he ever did.

The only thing needed to complete a dizzy evening would have been to have the Tartans play and win.

Oh, well, this is another week and what a week it promises to be. The Dukes and West Virginia continue their traveling tonight. Duquesne tackles American University at Washington, D. C., and the Mountaineers hook up with Virginia Poly at Bluefield. West Virginia Wesleyan and Mt. St. Marys are billed for an act at Cumberland.

The Panthers will start preparations this afternoon with a light workout for their contest Wednesday at the Stadium Pavilion with Wash-Jeff. The Panthers arrived home in good trim, refused to alibi and petitioned Director Harrison to book the Irish again next year.

BAKER STOPPED

The points that have caused the most comment in connection with Pitt's defeat are Eddie Baker's lack of points and Capt. Wunderlich's being chased out of the game for committing four personal fouls. Jerry has only been ejected from about three ball games in his life for that reason, and he played through three games this season with only one called against him-in-as-much as only one official was used, and Wunderlich usually plays back, the referee must have missed a lot of monkey business up under the hoop while he was calling 'em on Gyp.

Fight Judges Banned in California

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 11.—No more judges, referees only can make decisions in boxing bouts in California.

That, in effect, was the ruling handed down by Attorney General U. S. Webb to William Hanlon, state athletic commissioner, who had asked for a decision.

According to Webb, it is not within the power of the commission to appoint judges to assist the referee.

When the law legalizing boxing contests in California was passed, a number of subsequent poor decisions by referees brought the judge system as a corrective means. In the future it will be left strictly up to the third man in the ring to raise the hand of the winner according to his own judgment.

Cubs to Go West Thursday to Train

CHICAGO, Feb. 11.—(AP.)—With prospects for a National League championship the brightest since 1918, the advance guard of the Cubs' baseball team will shove off for their spring training camp at Catalina Island, Cal., Thursday.

Twenty-five players and officials will be with the first party, while the others will leave February 26.

FERET REINSTATED

PARIS, Feb. 11.—(AP.)—Raoul Feret, member of Charley Pyle's traveling tennis circus of several years ago, has been reinstated as a bona fide amateur by the French Amateur Tennis Federation.

MID-ATLANTIC LEAGUE SET ON DATES

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Feb. 11.—(AP.)—Representatives of Middle-Atlantic Baseball League clubs at a meeting here voted to open the 1929 season on May 9 and end the campaign on Labor Day, September 2. The schedule was not submitted, another meeting having been scheduled for March 20 to dispose of this matter.

It also was voted to do away with the "split" season, under which winners of the first and second half of the season's play engaged in a series for the championship after the regular schedule had been completed. The plan of play next year will be the same as in the major leagues, with the team having the highest standing winning the pennant at the close of the year.

Every club in the league with the exception of Cumberland was represented. Reports have been current that the Cumberland owner might dispose of his franchise, but nothing indicating such a change came out of the deliberations. Wheeling, Fairmont, Clarksburg, Johnstown, Scottdale, Jeannette and Charleroi sent representatives.

It was made known that the Scottdale club had reached an agreement with the St. Louis Cardinals, whereby the major league club would utilize Scottdale as a farm. Some of the other Middle Atlantic teams have similar agreements with major league organizations.

PAAVO NURMI MAY QUIT AS MILER

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—(AP.)—Paavo Nurmi, once the phantom Finn at almost any distance you could name, quite possibly has run his last mile.

His defeat by Ray Conger, Illinois A. C. flash, in the Rodman Wanamaker mile at the Millrose games seemed to demonstrate conclusively that the flying Finn no longer has the speed and stamina every good miler needs for his finishing spurt.

At the longer distances there is little doubt that Paavo will outrun any rival on this second American invasion, unless his arch-rival from Sweden, Edvin Wide, be excepted. But at distances under two miles Paavo no longer is the flying Finn who made track history on America's indoor tracks four years ago.

There could be no alibi for Nurmi's decisive defeat. He ran his own race, but it was not enough—not by some yards. After setting the pace from the start, Nurmi found he did not have the "kick" left to match Conger's whirlwind spurt, half a lap from the tape. Past the fading Finn Conger swept, widened his lead with every stride and won, going away, by a dozen yards, while 15,000 spectators roared acclaim.

Pirates Oppose Les Canadiens Tomorrow

Benny Leonard's hockey Pirates returned home from Detroit today to make ready for their three home games this week. The first of three clubs to appear here within six days is Les Canadiens, of Montreal, the fastest and most colorful sextet in the National League. The Flying Frenchmen will be met at Duquesne Garden tomorrow night, and Boston and Ottawa will follow them here Thursday and Saturday, respectively.

He is to be married. He will have a try-out in big league baseball.

Wedding bells will ring for O'Boyle at St. John's Church here today. His fiancee is Miss Adeline Glenn, of Des Moines.

On March 1 Harry will report at the Boston Red Sox training camp at Bradenton, Fla.

AN INDOOR golf tournament will be staged under the direction of Ed Murdoch, of the Pittsburgh Field Club, at the downtown indoor layout, Smithfield Building, tonight, starting at 8:30 o'clock. A number of prominent Kiwanians are expected to attend.

TWO BIG COUNTY LEAGUE GAMES TONIGHT

By JULIUS LEVIN.

The Duquesne Lafayettes will attempt to get back in the running for the second-half Allegheny County League championship tonight when they meet Duquesne Light in one of the two league games on the program. In the other contest the Miele-Franchinas oppose Charley Price's Reliance Life team at Columbus Temple.

The champions are not taking the game with the Lighters lightly and will send their strongest lineup against Kemp McNutt's improved band of passers. The Lafayettes seldom lose two games in one round of play and as they already have been defeated by the Rauhs it is certain they will be on their toes against the Lighters.

The Miele-Franchinas are determined to snap out of the slump that has trailed them during the early stages of the second round. This club shapes up as one of the best in the league and fans are puzzled by its failure to win more consistently.

IMMACULATE VS. FELDERS

The Immaculate Heart team, one of the contenders for the second round championship in the Pittsburgh and Ohio Valley circuit, will travel to Jeannette tonight to meet the Felders in a league encounter. Joe Dobbs has bolstered his lineup considerably since the close of the first half and will present a strong front against the home team.

One of the features of the second round race in the P. & O. League has been the fine showing of the McKeesport Alumni passers, who are coached by George Ramsay. The Tubers have been showing fine form in recent games and are favorites to meet the Conleys in the playoff series for the championship at the close of the season.

DRIBBLES

The East Liverpool Pros are using the tabernacle for all home games this season. The recent game with the Hakoahs of the American League drew more than 1,000.

Steubenville is all agog over the battle between the Duquesne Lafayettes and the Cleveland Rosenblums next Wednesday night in Steubenville. Indications are that the American Leaguers will draw a capacity crowd for their battle with the County League champions.

Tomorrow night the Leendis will make an attempt to add their third County League opponent to their list of victims when they meet the Rauhs at Pythian Hall, Center avenue and Dinwiddie street. Coach Posey's club has been flashing fine form of late and shapes up as one of the best professional teams operating hereabouts this winter. It holds wins over the Goldenseals and the Miele-Franchinas.

East Liverpool will meet the Cleveland Rosenblums on March 6 at East Liverpool. The Cleveland team is a prime favorite in East Liverpool and judging from the demand for reserved seats the tabernacle, formerly used by Billy Sunday, will house a record-breaking crowd.

TOURNEY GAME TONIGHT

The Young Men's Hebrew Association will strive to remain in the running for the first-class A. A. U. championship tonight when it opposes the Manchester Community House team on the Y. M. H. A. floor in a second-round tournament game. Manchester has been handicapped in recent games owing to the illness of four players, but the stars are reported back in shape for tonight's tussle.

A letter awaits the manager of the National Union Fire Insurance team at the Sun-Telegraph sports department.

BANQUET DRAWS SOCCER FANS

By TOM BIRKS

With soccer, sandlot baseball and sandlot football fans all having tables at the John Gruber testimonial banquet at the William Penn Hotel next Thursday, it is evident, good care is being taken of the sandlots and soccer.

The sandlot baseball table will find many notables who have flashed on the independent diamond during the last few years. Mickeys Rocks will have Wally Wickline, one of the greatest sandlot stars the Rex ever produced and Pop Geer, dean of Rox teams, the man who piloted the Stowe Independents to the Class A championship two years ago. Massing up a trio there will be Joe Semler, last year's Beaver Falls hurling ace, who made a specialty of beating the Homestead Grays.

Believue will be represented at the same table by Harry Yerx and Cy Rheam. When Yerx represents anything, it is well represented, and the colorful former Federal League player is another welcome former sandlotter.

Heinie Bott, Lawrenceville citizen and last season's captain of the Allegheny County League champions, will also be there. With Heinie will be Jack Larkin, Homewood booster, par excellence. When it comes to boosting a club, Larkin is in a class by himself.

Sitting at the soccer table with Harry Fairfield will be Karl Meisenberg, manager of the German Sport Club, with Dr. Wunderlich and Steve Horlick, the Ambridge booster. Steve's club won the Beaver Valley pennant on Saturday. Manager Ernest Bulzarini will be there with a delegation of Heidelberg soccer stars. Jack Lowther and Tom Dolan will represent the Pittsburgh Soccer Club, and Tom Edwards will come from the Celtics.

HEYDLER BEING EASED OUT, REPORT

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Is John Arnold Heydler being gradually and quietly eased out of the presidency of the National League? A little birdie whispers that such is the case and that there is more significance in the recent appointment of Barney Dreyfuss, president of the Pirates, to the vice presidency of the league than appears on the surface.

During all of the 53 years of the league's existence up to this time, the circuit has managed to struggle along without a v'ce president. Now it finds the need of one to act in the absence of the league head. The very next day after Dreyfuss' appointment, announcement was made that Heydler was going away on a vacation and that in his absence Dreyfuss, as vice president, would be acting president of the league. Now Dreyfuss is preparing to leave next Thursday for New York to travel, via boat, through the Panama Canal, to the Pirates' training camp at Paso Robles, Cal.

Who is to act as president of the league in the absence of both Heydler and Dreyfuss!

THE same little birdie who points out the possibility that Heydler may be on the toboggan points out that Heydler did not gain in favor with the magnates when he announced, recently, a plan that teams be made up of 10 players, the extra man to bat for the pitcher. The American League immediately poo-poohed the suggestion and the National League at the confab at which Dreyfuss was elevated to office placed the matter on the shelf, probably forever.

Where there is smoke there generally is fire, and the little birdie may have got to the heart of the conflagration in this instance.

MAX SCHMELING has become nothing less than an international complication. Now he asks the German embassy at Washington to save him from success in the form of too many managers and Con O'Kelly.

Will Tilden, who was nobody during the tennis season, now finds he was the greatest tennis player in the land for the year 1928. Proving that the U. S. L. T. A. still is its own little self.

MICKEY WALKER is barred in Illinois for not defending his middleweight championship. Tommy Loughran is signed to fight against any heavyweight there. As a result, they have been matched to fight each other in Chicago and will get away with it. What are a few barriers in the lives of fighters and promoters?

RAY (ELBOWS) CONGER is now being pointed out as the first gent to beat Nurmi over here. Took him like Young Corbett took Terry McGovern.

E. Washington High Star Breaks Arm

WASHINGTON, Pa., Feb. 11.—Frederick Stewart, aged 15, son of Walter F. Stewart, 115 East Beau street, this city, a member of the East Washington High School varsity basketball squad, is confined to his home by a compound fracture of the right arm below the elbow, received in a game with Canonsburg High. He was jostled just after he had jumped for the ball and fell to the floor in such a manner that the arm was caught under him and the bone badly broken.

Thunberg Cops World Speed Ice Crown

OSLO, Norway, Feb. 11.—(AP.)—Clas Thunberg, of Finland, was proclaimed unofficial world speed skating champion at the conclusion of a series of elimination races at 500, 1,000, 1,500, 5,000 and 10,000 meters. Ballangrud, of Norway, was announced as the runner-up. Thunberg finished no worse than second in any of the events.

The speedy Finn won the 1,500 meters event, while Stakrud, Norway, captured the 10,000.

Spring Training Opens Today On Coast

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 11.—(AP.)—Spring training, heralding the approach of the 1929 baseball season, begins in this section today with two clubs blazing the trail for four others which will open conditioning a week or so later.

The Los Angeles and Seattle clubs send their pitchers and catchers out for the first workout of six weeks training in preparation for the 28 weeks play in the Pacific Coast League opening March 26. Los Angeles will do its spring work at Wrigley Field here, while Seattle's training site lies in the midst of the little Spanish village of San Clemente, Cal.

The Hollywood and Portland clubs begin their spring training grinds next Monday, the stars sojourning in San Diego and the Beavers in Anaheim, Cal. At about the same time the Chicago Cubs will open their annual pilgrimage to Santa Catalina Island off this mainland and the Detroit Tigers will have their first workout at Phoenix, Ariz.

BETTING FAVORS SHARKEY

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 11.—(INS.)—The first sizable wager is down on the Stribling-Sharkey fight. It was placed by Cyril Harvey, Georgia broker, who sought to place $5,000 on the short end of a 7-to-5 bet. Frank McCormack, of Waltham, Mass., wanted the Sharkey end, but declined the odds Harvey asked.

They compromised on $5,800 to $5,000, McCormack making the Boston boy a slight favorite in the first important money placed here at the site of the fight.

Sharkey is ruling a 6-to-5 favorite in lesser amounts that were placed at the Miami Beach Kennel Club, where Sharkey was the clubhouse guest of Dempsey at the dog races.

PANHANDLE VICTOR

Panhandle All-Stars defeated the Washington County Stars, 7 goals to 2, in a soccer football battle played at Thoms Run yesterday.

Hyatt Second Among East's Scorers

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—(INS.)—The 28-point lead enjoyed last week by Lou Zara, of Rider College, over Charley Hyatt, of Pittsburgh, in the race for individual high scoring honors in eastern basketball circles, has been cut to 19, according to the figures this week. Zara has a total of 220 points to his credit, while Hyatt with 82 field goals has but 37 fouls in 14 games to make up a total of 201.

Joey Schaaff, of Pennsylvania, is third with 86 field goals and 30 fouls in 18 games, for a total of 186.

TEX CLEARED OF FRAUD IN TAXES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—(AP.)—A few high spots in the career of the late George L. (Tex) Rickard were reviewed today in a decision by the Board of Tax Appeals, which found that he had not committed fraud in failing to report as income in 1921 his share of profits from the Dempsey-Carpentier championship fight.

The board held, however, that the promoter's tax for that year would have to be redetermined and that he should have reported as income $20,450 received from motion pictures of the fight.

Rickard, the record showed, received $10,900 as his share of the picture profits, but half of it went to a silent partner, John Ringling. Rickard did not report that part of his income on the grounds that interstate transportation of the films was a violation of the law and that he expected litigation to wipe out his profit.

REVEALS VENTURES

The decision reviewed some of Rickard's business ventures from the time of his investment in a saloon and gambling house in Rawhide Nevada, in 1906, on which he claimed a loss of $1,000 in 1921. That claim was disallowed.

Other claims for deductions were for bad debts, ranging from $100 listed as loaned to Battling Nelson in 1919, to $5,000 listed as loaned to W. A. Gavin the same year. The board found that some of the loans were made with no expectation that they would be returned. Two of them were to A. J. Meyers, who borrowed $500 and $620 in 1919. Rickard testified that Meyers was the "discoverer of Goldfield, Nev."

LOSES HUGE SUMS

In August, 1921, Rickard testified, he loaned $25,000 to Trippe & Co., which went into a receivers' hands, and the amount was never paid. His deduction for this amount was allowed. Rickard claimed other deductions as the result of his investment in the Frigorifico San Salvador Del Paraguay, a meat packing company. He claimed losses of $75,000 and $125,000 as a result of this venture. His original investment in the company was $200,000.

MISS NEITZEL ICE CHAMP

DETROIT, Feb. 11.—(AP.)—Loretta Neitzel, Detroit's speed skating school teacher, decisively demonstrated her superiority over Mrs. Leila Brooks Potter, of Toronto, in their unofficial world championship series by winning three events here yesterday.

Trailing after the 220-yard and three-quarter mile races, Miss Neitzel came back to win the 440-yard half mile and mile events for a point score of 170.

Following her 10 points were Mrs. Potter, with 80; Miss Rose Marie Brady, Detroit, 60; Miss Margie Kennedy, Minneapolis, 30, and Miss Jean Doillotat, Detroit, 10.

ELGIN, Ill., Feb. 11.—(AP.)—O'Neill Farrell and Helena Bina, of Chicago, won the men's and women's senior Western Skating Association championships before 15,000 spectators at the Elgin Skating Club.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—(AP.)—To all intents and purposes the field still in the running for the world 18.2 balkline billiard championship has been reduced to three—Kinrey Matsuyama, of Japan, and Welker Cochran and Young Jake Schaefer, of the United States.

Of the three other participants in the round robin tournament in progress at the Level Club, Felix Grange, the French champion, has completed his schedule and failed to win one of his five starts. Eric Hagenlacher, of Germany, and Edouard Horemans, of Belgium, the defending champion, still has a mathematical chance of figuring in the title chase, but it is nothing more than that.

JAP AT TOP

The end of the first six days of the eight-day tournament found Matsuyama leading the field with three victories in as many starts. Schaefer and Cochran, two outstanding favorites, were in a tie for second place with a brace of wins and one defeat. Horemans and Hagenlacher were in another deadlock for fourth position with an even break in four games.

With four matches yet to be played, three of them involving the trio of contenders, the championship still hands in the balance. Matsuyama, the little Japanese sensation of the tournament, of course, holds a decided advantage, even though he still must play Cochran tonight and Schaefer probably tomorrow night. In addition to these two matches, Cochran and Schaefer yet must play each other, and that's another break for Matsuyama. The fourth match will pit Hagenlacher and Horemans against one another.

EXTEND TOURNEY

Officials of the National Billiard Association announced that they had decided to extend the tournament an extra day. Under revised plans there will be no afternoon match today, but the Matsuyama-Cochran game will be staged in the evening as scheduled. Tentatively the schedule for tomorrow would bring together Horemans and Hagenlacher in the afternoon and Cochran and Schaefer in the evening. The final match between Schaefer and Matsuyama then will be held Wednesday night.

In the event, however, that Cochran defeats Matsuyama, the program probably will be switched around in the fashion: Tomorrow afternoon, Horemans and Hagenlacher; tomorrow evening Schaefer and Matsuyama; Wednesday night, Schaefer and Cochran.

PIN TOURNEY UNDER WAY

More than 40 squads of bowlers were scheduled to roll this afternoon in the opening day's play in the annual Tri-State Tenpin tournament on the Club alleys, downtown.

Doctor Misses Perfect Score In Bowling

Dr. L. S. Fletcher, of Castle Shannon, bowling in the E. E. Shaw Mixed League on the Mt. Lebanon alleys missed a perfect score by 10 pins in a league match. Starting his first frame with a spare, Dr. Fletcher came back with 11 straight strikes to bowl 290.

Dr. Fletcher started his next game with two straight strikes, giving him a mark of 12 strikes in a row. His score for the second game was 186.

Managers Fined For Refusing Judges

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 11.—(AP.)—Joe Smith, manager of Tommy Loughran, light-heavyweight champion, and Charles Emanuel, father-manager for Armand Emanuel, San Francisco heavyweight, have been fined $200 each by James Woods, member of the State Athletic Commission.

Woods in announcing the fines, said they were the result of the row started by Smith and Emanuel over the judges selected by Woods before the Loughran-Armand Emanuel fight here last Tuesday night.

Both managers threatened to take their fighters out of the ring unless Referee Abe Roth was permitted to judge the fight alone. Rather than spoil a promised show for a capacity house, State Inspector Bill Bomb removed the judges.

ing made a more than creditable showing on the four-game trip through Western Pennsylvania. Geneva, Thiel and Allegheny were defeated, while the Westminster Titans handed the Bisons their first and only setback. Allegheny toppled Saturday night in a very close contest, 32 to 31.

The Bisons didn't look so hot against Westminster, but Johnny Johnson, a wide-awake sports critic of Meadville, tells me the boys went pretty smoothly in taking Allegheny.

GRUBER DINNER COMMITTEE IN CONFAB

The final meeting of the committee in charge of the testimonial dinner to John H. Gruber, veteran local sports scribe and official scorer, to be held in the ballroom of the William Penn Hotel next Thursday night, under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Chapter of the Baseball Writers' Association of America, will be held late today to dispose of details in connection with the event, which promises to be one of the most notable festive events in the history of the city.

Seat sales have gone over the 500 mark and, with the eleventh-hour reservations, are expected to hit 1,000. Arrangements will be made to handle a capacity turnout, including the balcony of the spacious ballroom.

TO ENTERTAIN VISITORS

The reception committee will go into a huddle to shape plans for the entertainment of the invited guests, many of whom will come from out of town. They will be taken in tow upon their arrival and will be entertained throughout their stay.

News that Glenn S. (Pop) Warner is coming all the way from California for the event has heightened interest. Warner is a popular figure here, where he coached some of his greatest elevens at the University of Pittsburgh prior to going to Stanford University. He will be the personal guest of Alex Stevenson, his colleague at Pitt, and will sit at the Philadelphia Company table.

S. S. (Sam) Willaman, new head coach of Ohio State University, whose eleven will play Pitt at the Stadium here next fall, marking the beginning of gridiron relations between the two universities, in a letter to the committee in charge of the banquet, writes:

"I am only too glad to accept your fine invitation to attend your first annual sports writers' dinner. Leo Rackowski, our star tackle, has signified his intention of coming along with me. I am sorry I cannot bring Wesley Fesler, our all-America end, with me, as he is the type of boy that we would like to have better known, but it would be unfair to our basketball team to take him away at this time."

OPEN TO EVERYONE

Coach Walter P. Steffen, of Carnegie Tech, has wired the committee that he positively will be here for the banquet. He found it impossible to get away from his judicial duties in Chicago to attend the recent dinner of the Veteran Athletes at Philadelphia.

The Gruber dinner is open to the public and no special invitation is required to attend. Everybody is welcome. Reservations may be made through any of the sports writers of the local newspapers or through John L. Hernon, treasurer, P. O. Box 218, Pittsburgh, Pa., or by telephone by calling Montrose 4715.

Grantham Loses Golf Final at Phoenix

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 11.—(AP.)—Ralph Pummit, Ogden (Utah) youngster, won the annual invitational golf tournament of the Phoenix Country Club yesterday from George Grantham, of Phoenix, 5 and 2. Grantham is first baseman of the Pittsburgh Nationals.

FOLINS IN BOUT AT NEW HAVEN TONIGHT

Herman Folins, former amateur of Ambridge, who has been bowling along in great style in New York in recent months under the management of Lou Brown, answers the gong tonight against Joe Curry, of New Haven, Conn., in an eight-round bout at New Haven. It's his first battle of more than six rounds and his toughest test so far. Phil (Chappie) Goldstein, Hill district lightweight, battles Freddie Mueller, of Buffalo, in a windup at Rochester, N. Y.

Sandy Seifert, North Side heavyweight, had a bout lined up for Indianapolis tomorrow night, but Jim Williams, of Chicago, wouldn't take him as an opponent. He also was in line for one of the preliminaries on the Sharkey-Stribling card at Miami Beach, Fla., until the promoters decided to use the sparring partners of the main principals to save traveling expenses.

MAHON BEATS LARSON

Paddy Mahan, Charleroi featherweight, defeated Sailor Larson, of Moline, Ill., in a 10-round bout at Wheeling Saturday night. Mike Hogan, of the North Side, subbing for Johnny Smackey, of Canonsburg, lost to Tony Datolit, of Wheeling, in six rounds, and Young Irish, of Akron, defeated Petey Roberts, of Wheeling, in six.

Midget Wolgast and Phil Tobin meet in one of the bouts of their series in New York tonight. Al Winkler fights King Tut and Benny Bass meets Eddie O'Dowd in Chicago.

Local fans are warming up to the Dominick Profio-Young Rudy return battle at McKeesport Thursday night and the Johnny Dunn-Jackie Rodgers embroglio at the Moose Temple the following night.

Cuddy DeMarco boxes the 10-round main bout at the Olympia Club in Philadelphia Wednesday night.

U. S. CARPENTIER BUSY

E. S. Carpentier meets Joe Ehrens at Steubenville, O., Thursday night and K. O. Harris at Akron the following night. Sammy Paris, his stablemate, boxes Young Ketchel on the Steubenville card and Nat Litkin in one of the preliminaries at the Moose Temple here the following night.

Johnny Dundee and Lou Moscowitz cross gloves in New York tomorrow night, and Jackie Fields battles Baby Joe Gans in the windup in Madison Square Garden, New York Friday night.

The boxing show scheduled for the Arena in Philadelphia tonight has been called off due to the illness of Phil (K. O.) Kaplan, who was to box Rene DeVos in the main bout.

Five amateur boxing bouts will feature a smoker of the Holy Name Society of the Holy Cross Church in Schiller Gloccice hall, South Side, this evening. Four amateur boxing bouts and a battle royal have been arranged for the monthly smoker of the Pittsburgh Railways Company employes in the ballroom of Duquesne Garden.

Dan Billick, Duquesne featherweight, has added another knockout victory to his string. On Saturday night, he won by a technical knockout over Jackie Saunders, of Allentown, Pa., in the second round when the referee halted their bout at the Olympia Club, New York, after Billick had scored three knockdowns. Dan would like to fight the winner of the Jackie Rodgers-Johnny Duan bout here.

By JAMES J. LONG

Champion Joe Dundee to enter the ring with him in defense of that diadem, this week is likely to witness the settlement of the first part of the contract, at least. For Jackie Fields and Baby Joe Gans are to clash in New York next Friday night, and on the face of the dope the winner should be in line for an early crack at the titleholder. From this distance, the chances appear to favor Fields, and if he succeeds in removing Gans from his championship path he can hardly, in fairness, be denied the right to try for the championship, particularly, as he has also defeated Jack Thompson, who flattened Dundee in a couple of rounds in a bout in which the title was not at stake.

Glenn Wright

WHILE it is not openly admitted that the Brooklyn club attempted to cut Shortstop Glenn Wright's salary for 1929 to a figure below the sum he received in Pittsburgh last year, that is the inference to be drawn from a New York report that names Wright as one of five Brooklyn players "Who have refused to sign contracts mailed to them several weeks ago." In its reference to the former Pirate shortstop, the story says "Wright wants $15,000, the salary he received from the Pittsburgh club last year."

According to the rumor, the four other Robins who have refused to accept the terms offered are Pitcher Dazzy Vance, who demands $25,000; Pitcher Douglas McWeeny, who insists on $15,000, and First Baseman Del Bissonette and Outfielder Babe Herman, each of whom asks more than $12,000. And at the same time comes the news that another Brooklyn player who had been tabbed as a certain holdout has fooled the dopesters by signing his contract. That player is Dave Bancroft. The veteran was given a big salary cut,

BUSINESS HERE DECLARED SPOTTY

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

A LARGE block of the common stock of the Sharon Steel Hoop Company is understood to be included in the holdings of the Oil Well Supply Investment Company which is to be refinanced under the name of Pennsylvania Industries, Inc.

J. H. Hillman, Jr., who controls Oil Well Supply Investment, was recently made a director of Sharon Steel Hoop and he is reported to have obtained a dominant interest in the company.

This adds another unit to the already large chain of Hillman companies. It is not considered likely that Sharon Steel Hoop will be merged with any of the other organizations in the group, but it may be able to take advantage of affiliated interests as the other companies have done.

SHARON STEEL HOOP may supply certain types of steel to Spang, Chalfant & Co., or pig iron to the A. M. Byers Company which has dismantled its Girard blast furnace.

The Sharon Steel Hoop Company has plants at Sharon, Pa., Youngstown, Warren and Lowellsville, O. It operates blast furnaces with a capacity of 135,000 tons of pig iron a year and has steel making capacity of 440,000 tons. During the last year $3,500,000 was spent for plant improvements. A short time ago plans were announced which will provide for the retirement of the preferred stock through the issuance of additional common stock, probably in the form of rights to stockholders. The plan will be placed into effect after ratification has been obtained at a series of stockholders' meetings necessary to meet the legal requirements of the change in capitalization.

Pennsylvania Industries, Inc., may also have a block of the stock of the Inland Steel Company. The new name is being adopted because the holdings of Oil Well Supply Company stock were sold more than a year ago. At the time of its formation two years ago the investment company also had a block of A. M. Byers common. No list of its holdings has been published since that time.

AT a stockholders meeting to be held on February 18 the change in name will be authorized as well as the new capitalization. The authorized common stock will be increased from 400,000 shares to 750,000 shares.

A new issue of $10,000,000 of 6 per cent preferred will be authorized. Part of this will be offered for sale to the public by Dillon, Read & Co., with attached warrants entitling the holder to buy an equal number of shares of common stock at $30 a share by February, 1934. The holders of the present 7 per cent preferred will be given an opportunity to exchange each share for one share of the new preferred with the same purchase warrant and one-half share of common.

Another newspaper yesterday incorrectly stated that the Oil Well Supply Company was to be recapitalized. The Oil Well Supply Company and the Oil Well Supply Investment Company are entirely distinct organizations.

BUSINESS conditions in the Pittsburgh district are somewhat spotty in the opinion of A. C. Robinson, president of the Peoples Savings and Trust Company. The department stores and smaller retail merchants have not found their sales up to expectations. This is largely due to weather conditions. The lack of any great amount of cold early in the winter curtailed sales of clothing and the more recent unpleasantness of the weather and the great amount of illness have not been conductive to a large volume of shopping.

Mr. Robinson predicts a far-reaching struggle for world export markets in the future. The rehabilitation of European industry is placing it in a stronger competitive condition. American manufacturers are also seeking foreign markets as an outlet for their surplus production. An interesting struggle is likely to result, the outcome of which will have a far-reaching effect on economic conditions throughout the entire world.

POLICEMEN IN CYCLE STUNTS

Nine Mexican stunt motorcyclists, described as good-will ambassadors, reached Pittsburgh today on their tour of the states and immediately arranged a stunt contest with Pittsburgh's motorcycle police for tomorrow.

Their leader, Maj. Gaston DePrida, told James M. Malone, president of Council, that they had ridden their motorcycles from noon yesterday, when they left Huntington, W. Va., until 6 a. m. today.

The motorcyclists were part of an escort for Col. Lindbergh during his stay in Mexico City. They are appearing at the Sheridan Square Theater Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday and at the Harris Theater the rest of the week.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—(AP.)—Prices in the bond market staged a partial recovery early today under the leadership of American International convertible 5½s, reflecting the improved tone in stocks. The rally was in face of higher money and the special meeting of New York Federal Reserve Bank directors after the market's close.

American International 5½s jumped 1½ points, and strength was displayed by such speculative leaders as Allegheny Corporation 5s, International Telephone convertible 4½s and International Cement 5s. St. Paul adjustment 5s were the strong feature of the steady rail group. Industrials and utilities were firm, with trading on a small scale. The foreign list was weak.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, 000 omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

Wall Street Quotations — Local Stock Quotations

Forbes

Forbes Urges Postponing Further Anti-Stock Action.

—By B. C. FORBES—

WHEN the New York Federal Reserve Bank directors hold their special meeting today, they should not raise the 5 per cent rediscount rate, but should wait until they and the rest of the country can judge the effect of the anti-speculation steps taken by the Federal Reserve Board.

The nervous action of the stock market on Thursday and Friday indicates that fierce official attacks upon it may not be necessary but might, indeed, precipitate more unfortunate conditions than those sought to be cured.

Bluntly, further violent spasms, incited by additional hostile reserve bank action, might do more than kill speculative enthusiasm—it might transform the present hopeful mental attitude of the industrial and business world into apprehension, pessimism and depression sufficient to injure employment.

STOCK prices fell drastically last week. The drop was the severest ever suffered in one week, with the sole exception of last December. The average fall was around $14 a share.

How severe the shrinkage in quotations of leading stocks has been is brought out in this table, covering high-priced issues; many low-priced stocks have suffered worse in percentage of loss:

UNQUESTIONABLY, some calming down of the speculative fever was demanded by the best interests of the nation. How many men have become so engrossed in stock market ventures as to affect adversely their ability to concentrate on their legitimate duties cannot be gauged, but the number palpably is unhealthily large.

Far too many persons in humble walks of life have become deluded into imagining that copybook maxims about hard work, frugality, perseverance, etc., being the keys to success in life are foolish, childish piffle, fit only for consumption by school boys, and that the smart, easy, "wise guy" way to get rich quickly is to gamble in stocks.

Moreover, the constantly-swelling absorption of funds to feel the speculative boom was upsetting the equilibrium of the world's money markets and, more immediately important, was destined to restrict business enterprise at home.

Under all the circumstances it was entirely logical that the federal reserve authorities should use their influence to avoid the trouble which the speculative orgy was surely inviting.

BUT very deliberate care should be exercised both in Washington and New York to avoid unnecessarily harsh measures fraught with far-reaching dangers to our whole structure of business and employment. True, previous warnings were ignored. But last week's activities on the New York Stock Exchange suggest that this latest warning is not being ignored.

Why not, therefore, await developments before meting out additional punishment?

In taking this stand, I am much less concerned over what might happen to those who have been speculating to the very limit of their resources than I am concerned over the much broader question of what may happen to industry, to business, to wage earners and to the country as a whole, should panicky conditions be precipitated in the security markets. Let nobody imagine for a moment that nothing could happen in Wall Street to hurt the whole country.

OUTSIDE of Wall Street, developments thus far this year have been, on the whole, distinctly favorable. Improvement has occurred in most industries, with a considerable boom in metals. The generally prosperous state of the country is reflected by an unusual number of wage increases and very few reductions.

AFTER all, is not the paramount duty of every authority in Washington to think primarily of the greatest good of the greatest number and to act with a single eye to that end? It is highly questionable, in my humble judgment, whether additional punishment of speculators would attain that end.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Stock Market Rallies — Prices Steady Here

COPPERS LEAD BRISK RALLY IN STOCKS

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—(AP.)—Disregarding an 8 per cent renewal rate for call money and the mysterious meeting of the directors of the New York Federal Reserve Bank after the close, the stock market rallied briskly today under the leadership of the copper and public utility shares. Some irregularity developed at the opening but the losses were quickly cut down or wiped out, and scores of issues were marked up 2 to 11 points.

The renewal rate for call money was the highest since January 4 when the market was still in the throes of year-end readjustments, but a flood of new funds was attracted by the high charge with the result that loans in the "outside market" were available at 7½ in the early afternoon.

Wall street apparently recovered from the fears that the New York Federal Reserve rediscount rate would be increased this afternoon, although some of the more conservative commission houses continued to urge caution in the making of new commitments. Except for the announcement that the Studebaker Corporation had entered the radio business and a series of favorable week-end trade reports, there was little in the day's news to influence the price movement.

Suggestions have been made in some quarters that leading bankers looked with favor on a check to stop stock speculation and lower interest rates in the hope that such action would facilitate the distribution of the German bond issue expected to result from the meeting of reparations experts. It is considered unlikely, however, that such an issue could be floated before late spring or early summer.

Heavy buying of the coppers was stimulated by talk of still higher prices for the red metal. Greene Cananea ran up 7 points, Anaconda 5 and St. Joseph Lead, Calumet & Arizona, and Kennecott sold 3 to 5 points higher.

Radio (old stock) soared 11 points and American and Foreign Power, Pere Marquette, U. S. Realty, Real Silk Hosiery, Commonwealth Power, Goodyear Rubber, General Electric, Bethlehem Steel, A. M. Byers, International Business Machine, Westinghouse Electric, Simmons Company and Victor Talking Machine all sold 4 to 7 points higher.

Chrysler Motors had another sinking spell around mid-day, dropping to a new 1929 low at 160, but fresh buying support was quickly supplied.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—The cotton market opened steady at a 4 to 12 point advance, with active months soon showing net gains of 8 to 14 points on covering together with trade and commission house buying which was accompanied by talk of bullish private figures on domestic consumption for January and promoted by higher Liverpool cables. The advance met a good deal of realizing and some of the southern selling arrived on 1.10c for May and 19.57c for the new October contracts. Selling however, was absorbed on reactions of 4 or 5 points, with the market fairly active and steady at the end of the first half hour.

Private cables reported covering and trade calling combined with continental buying in the Liverpool market.

The private report estimating consumption of lint cotton in this country for January at 665,000 bales came in for much comment, but after the early advance to 20.10c for May demand tapered off somewhat and there were reactions under realizing or liquidation. These offerings sent prices off 6 or 7 points from the best. While less active, buying continued and the market was steady at midday, with May selling at 20.06c and the general list showing net advances of 3 to 9 points.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Feb. 11.—Owing chiefly to report of unfavorable weather in Europe and to fears of crop damage there, wheat prices here scored early advances today. Notice was taken that despite huge world shipments, stocks of wheat afloat were still smaller than a year ago. Starting ⅛ to ¾ higher, Chicago wheat afterward rose further, but then reacted somewhat. Corn, oats and provisions were easier, with corn opening unchanged to ¾ off, and subsequently undergoing a general setback.

Word of temperatures 15 below zero at Berlin today was accompanied by advices that wheat in Eastern Germany and in Poland was without sufficient snow covering. Furthermore, apprehension about likelihood of damage to domestic winter wheat continued to be expressed. St. Louis messages in particular telling of misgivings that late sown wheat was dead as was the case last year. Meanwhile tremendous world exports for the week, 23,312,000 bushels, left the amount of wheat on ocean passage nevertheless about 1,000,000 short of last year's total.

Declines in corn values today were ascribed to indications of a heavier movement of corn from rural sources. Seasonable weather prevailed over the corn belt, and arrivals of corn in Chicago today were of liberal volume, 621 cars compared with 520 cars one week back.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Raw sugar was unchanged early today. No sales reported. Spots quoted at 3.77c duty paid.

Raw futures opened unchanged to 1 point higher on covering for local and European account and continued steady throughout the remainder of the forenoon. The list at midday was net unchanged to 2 points higher. March contracts showed the maximum gain, but on the whole trading was not very active. There appeared to be a disposition among operators to hold off and wait developments. Nothing new was heard in regard to last week's press advices indicating the possibility of some restriction on the sale of Cuban sugar. With tomorrow a holiday, a good deal of the early trading was believed to consist of evening-up.

In refined no new business was reported, but withdrawals were fair and prices were unchanged at 5.10c for fine granulated.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—(AP.)—The Curb Market opened stronger after the two-day holiday and by midday many of the active issues tallied 5 to 14-point gains.

There was some liquidation in the first hour attributed to traders protecting "big board" accounts, but most of these losses were quickly recovered. Call money opened at 8 per cent, the highest renewal rate since January 4, but this and the New York Federal Reserve Bank's director meeting seemed to be ignored by early traders.

Activity was centered in the utilities, Electric Bond and Share shooting up 14 points to 254 on reports a subsidiary had acquired control of Argentine property. Gains of 2 to 5 points were established by Electric Investors and United Gas Improvement. American Gas and Electric reacted after soaring 9 points.

Goldman Sachs Trading extended its gain to a new record price at 223¾, and the new, when issued, stock rose 2 points to 114½. Food stocks were strong, Van Camp advancing more than 5 points to above 38.

Mining stocks were active at higher levels. Newmont gained 2 points.

A 3-point advance in Boeing Aircraft featured the aviation group, reflecting reports of record breaking sales at the airplane show. In the automotives, Checker Cab advanced 5 points.

Oils were steady, Standard of Indiana moving up fractionally.

CELEBRITIES ON THE AIR TONIGHT

EDISON TO TALK; HEMPEL, BORI, WHITEMAN ON AIR

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor

IS IT A DREAM?

No less than two dozen luminaries will appear before the microphone. It is one of radio's best nights.

From 7:30 o'clock after midnight the ether waves will be busy with exceptionally good features. The attractions are all within reach of Pittsburgh—many of them from local stations that are heard well in this city.

The man who says little but does much will celebrate his eighty-second birthday by speaking over KDKA at 8:30 o'clock—Thomas A. Edison. Frieda Hempel will sing his favorite songs.

EDGEWOOD COMPOSER

Two of Edwin F. Nevin's compositions will be sung by Franklyn Baur. "Little Boy Blue" and "The Rosary" will be heard over WCAE at 8:7 p. m. Nevin was born in Edgewood in 1871.

Along comes that little harmonist of the air who is followed everywhere by Pittsburghers—Little Jack Little—tonight at 8:15 from WLW.

Eleanor Painter makes a belated visit through WJAS at 9:30. She disappointed listeners last week.

Lucrezia Bori sings through WJAE at 8:45 o'clock.

CLOCK OF CELEBRITIES

What a list of celebrities at the Wolfe Gillis dinner over WCAE at 10 o'clock. Three masters of ceremonies—Gene Buck, George Jessel and Paul Whiteman. And a dozen entertainers, including Eddie Cantor, Irving Berlin, Belle Baker and Vincent Lopez.

Al Mamaux, Jess Petty, Galla-Rini, Irene Franklin—all on the Davis Jubilee at 11 p. m., WCAE.

Dick Liebert, popular organist, has composed a number, "A Bungalow, a Radio and You," W. Howard Gardner, tenor, will sing it over KQV at 11.

Oh, yes, the Pittsburgh Symphony with William Van Hoogstraten, at WCAE, 10:30 tonight.

And that's not all. Read the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph timetable for further details.

Lucrezia Bori, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, and Eugene Goossens, famous English composer and orchestra director, will be the stars.

Mme. Bori first comes to her audience with the aria from the third act of Bizet's "Carmen," sung by Micaela, the simple, innocent country maid. She has painfully climbed to the smuggler's haunt to tell Jose and his mother is dying. She is frightened and awed and very much disturbed, as such a girl would be in such surroundings and bringing such a message.

In the latter part of the program, Mme. Bori will sing the gay, careless gavotte from the third act of Massenet's "Manon."

BUGS BAER Says

THE SPEECHLESS DOCTOR.

AN ENGLISH doctor says the world's supply of cuss words is pitifully inadequate.

His slurring remark has caused intense indignation among the upper classes of England.

Arthur "Bugs" Baer

A remark like that can start something. Like a giraffe's Adam's apple it has a long ways to go.

When Dean Inge heard about it he immediately called an extra choir rehearsal.

It is apparent that the doctor was not in the war. Otherwise he would have heard some conversation that would have glutted his market.

He does admit that there are some very fine established cuss words that are as overworked as a taxidermist stuffing a whale. But he claims that there hasn't been a new swear word thought of in years.

The only explanation we can give is that, before the doctor calls on his patients, he must squirt ether through the keyhole.

We know some beautiful triple-jointed epithets.

And, peculiarly enough, they are all about doctors.

If the doc wants to improve his sub rosa education, we will give him two tickets to "What Price Glory."

It is apparent that the English stage is not so progressive as the American.

There are some shows running on Broadway that would blast the old doc right out of his tank.

Possibly the doc isn't qualified to speak on the subject.

How does he know what the Prince says when he is flat on the ground and his hoss is winning the race without him?

He isn't reciting Mother Goose rhymes, Prince or no Prince.

Or we should say, Prince or no Loss.

We should advise the doc to study chiropractics. Then he would increase his vocabulary every time he twisted a fibula or cracked a clavicle.

We feel sorry for the doc. If he doesn't know any cuss words he must be very lonely without anybody to talk to.

COOK-COOS by Ted Cook

(Copyright, 1929.)

Members of the exclusive Albuquerque, New Mexico, Walking Club, who hiked all the way to the National Capital to cheer for Frisby.

WASHINGTON.—Five footsore days and six endless nights! This is the staggering record already attained by Congressman Frisby in his non-stop walking test.

"Not fatigued in the least!" was Frisby's message to the world as he turned a cartwheel and hurried around a corner late last night.

Despite Mr. Frisby's unblemished reputation, there are ugly rumors abroad that he has not been sincere with his public.

In fact, one report has it that Frisby walks until the streets are deserted, and then dodges into a rooming house across the railroad tracks.

One street vendor complained that Frisby was refueling himself by snatching peanuts.

Asked to explain these attacks, Frisby said—

"For 14 years I have stood like a rock. I refuse to dignify aspersions upon my character with a reply until tomorrow, when I will consult my attorney. I will then issue a formal reply which will be a sizzler, as Frisby has no ax to grind!"

Imaginary conversation when two radio announcers get together—

A.—Good evening, this is Graham McNamee speaking; I am delivering this salutation with my vocal cords, in the interest of cordiality.

B.—Stand by, and you will hear my reply immediately. But first let me give you the correct Western Union time!

Genevieve, the kitchen cynic, thinks Strange Interlude means the lapse between a divorcee's divorces.

And when I die I hope
To be content if Heaven's scent
Is just like hotel soap!

Visitors Come to Learn While We Don't Care to

Argentina, perhaps the most progressive country of South America, whose chief city, Buenos Aires, has been described as a western Paris, has sent a score of its educators to the United States to study. Just now they are in Pittsburgh, where the Carnegie Institute, particularly the department of the museum, Pitt, Tech, Mellon Institute and other institutions, including our public school system, are objects of interest. So fruitful a reservoir is Pittsburgh for this group that it remains here four days.

An incident of interest was their view of the original Carnegie diplodocus. Andrew Carnegie caused a number of duplicates of old diplodocus to be made as gifts for various museums throughout the world, including the museum in Buenos Aires. Some of the visitors, it seems, thought they had the original at home, hence they were amazed to find it here, with many other relics of prehistoric times. They came to learn and that one of the things they learned.

The point of the matter is that people from far off lands come here frequently to LEARN. Their governments send them or institutions send them. They want to acquire knowledge from us to make their lives more full and complete.

But do we want to learn anything from them? Not we. We are the most self-satisfied people in the world. How we ever got manual training into our schools is something to marvel about, since that valuable branch of education is of foreign birth, having originated in Finland.

It seems that all we have to do to make a thing abhorrent is to term it foreign. To give a perfectly natural inclination a black eye we squelch it by calling it a foreign idea. If we want a rational observance of Sunday, for instance, we are accused of trying to establish a "Continental Sunday." Horrors! Isn't that enough to condemn it? Certainly. We must not learn a thing from civilizations centuries older than our own. They have nothing to teach us. Not even any ideas on how to live.

We wonder how these intelligent people from a most intelligent nation enjoyed their Sunday in Pennsylvania, where the good people who want just a little liberty on Sunday are being held up as scapegraces by some other good people who think we have nothing to learn from the older nations of the world. Or from some of our neighboring states, where the people are not so deluded.

Russia EDUCATES Her People

Therein Lies the Strength of the Soviet Government.

RUSSIAN ADULTS LEARNING TO READ

This picture would have surprised the late Czar and his predecessors. Their idea was that the LESS the ordinary man knew the easier it was to govern him.

And that was a good idea for the Czars.

Fortunately for the Russian people it is NOT the idea of that "Bolshevik" Government, to which our American Government objects so violently.

Russia, as you see in this picture, is now teaching all Russians to read and write, and education is compulsory.

Not merely children, but fathers and mothers, are taught.

Here you see women picking out letters, spelling painfully. BUT THEY ARE LEARNING.

One of the best sayings is, "Give light, and the people will find their own way."

The light is IN BOOKS. Knowledge is there, power to think, and decide for yourself.

Teaching the 120,000,000 Russian people to read, opening up the treasures of the libraries, supplying food for minds that have been starved for centuries, sets a good example.

And in teaching the people to read Russia's Soviet Government establishes itself on a firm foundation.

The Government of Russia may not suit us. But it suits the RUSSIANS, apparently.

It lifts them from ignorance into the light of knowledge.

And to the miserable peasants that were the slaves of self-indulgent, often drunk and worthless Russian nobles, it has given ownership of the land on which they were born, land on which they work, and to which they give all of its value. Once were slaves on the land, now they OWN it.

Whatever our country may think of Russia's Government, however much it might like to CHANGE that Government, it will find Russia's people objecting to change.

"Give light, and the people will find their own way."

GIVE LAND, AND THE PEOPLE WILL NOT FORGET IT.

Tales That Are Told

Out of Date

THE newly-married man sat at the tea-table, in the middle of which was his wife's first cake.

"Now, Tom," said she, "you must try my cake—it's a new idea I got from a newspaper, and I think it's a great success."

Tom helped himself to a slice. Silently he chewed and chewed—it was heavy and solid as clay, with dark lumps.

"Lovely, isn't it?"

"Er—yes, dear!" he replied. "What—er—do you call this sort of cake?"

"It's a date cake," said his wife triumphantly.

"Well, dear," he replied, "don't you think the date goes back a bit too far?"

The Time Test

TWO Scots were discussing the domestic troubles of a friend.

"That woman leads puir Sandy an awfu' life," said one.

"Humph! what else could ye expect?" asked the other. "He only coorted her for seven years, an' I hold that nae man can understand a woman in that time. Now I coorted Maggie Deans for twenty-twa years——"

"And did complete happiness follow this lengthy courtship?" asked an Englishman seated opposite.

The speaker was given a scornful glance by the "ardent wooer," who replied: "I found oot at the end o' that time that I didna much care for the woman, an' cried aff!"

That Was All

THERE had been a burglary, and a police inspector was making a list of the things that had been stolen.

"Ten spoons, six forks, a clock, and four vases," repeated the officer, as he finished writing in his notebook.

The inspector paused, his pencil poised in the air.

"Now," he said, "you're sure there's nothing else missing?"

"No, nothing else," was the reply: "barring the man who took them."

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

THEY tell all kind of tales about Australia and the ostriches. The oldest guz, of course, is about the ostrich hiding its head in the sand, but now they say that ain't true at all, because the ostrich has got enough sense to keep from getting its ears all dirty that way.

But there was one of these lecturing explorers walking around an ostrich down near Melbourne somewhere, and he came across one bird that was standing up on a fence post and singing tenor.

"What's the matter with this here bird" says the lecturer, "I thought they kept silent most of the time."

"Yeah, but they'll eat anything," says the keeper. "This one broke into a music store last night and ett up all the Caruso records."

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

THIS is a little talk for those who feel that they are failures, and carry within them that rankling sense of abasement which they call an "inferiority complex."

The other day Meta came to me in great distress. Meta is 22 years old—a stenographer. Young and independent, she should be happy, shouldn't she? But she isn't. Ever since she was a little girl Meta has felt "out of it." She's shy and awkward and plain. These things can be remedied, and Meta has tried to remedy them in a feeble, hopeless sort of way. But she has never succeeded—she has never been able to conquer the discouragement which lies at the core of her spirit. She's terribly unhappy. She can't work up any excitement about anything—either about herself or about life and she thinks she might as well kill herself and be done with it all.

Many other young people are feeling like that. This swift, colorful period in history is proving too much for them. They can't somehow swing into line. BUT IF YOU CAN GIVE THEM SOMETHING WHICH MAKES THEM SEEM IMPORTANT TO THEMSELVES, THEN EVERYTHING IS CHANGED.

After Meta had her cry I told her of something which a man said two thousand years ago. If ever a man had reason to have an inferiority complex Epictetus did, for he was a crippled slave. Yet despite his shackles he turned life into a great adventure, and left his powerful mark on human history.

At first he wasn't of the least importance to anyone. He was of so little importance that his master broke his leg as punishment for some trivial offence. But Epictetus was always important to himself—he refused to feel inferior.

HE WAS IMPORTANT TO HIMSELF BECAUSE HE WAS ALIVE, AND HE FELT THAT LIFE ITSELF WAS A HOLY, MYSTERIOUS AND EXCITING MIRACLE. HE FELT THAT LIFE WAS GOD, AND THAT THOSE WHO WERE ALIVE HELD GOD WITHIN THEMSELVES AND SHOULD BE PROUD AND ENERGETIC BECAUSE OF IT.

Here is what he said once to his friend Arrian:

"YOU ARE A DISTINCT PORTION OF THE ESSENCE OF GOD AND CONTAIN A CERTAIN PART OF HIM IN YOURSELF. Why, there, are you so ignorant of your noble birth? Why do not you consider whence SELF. Why, then, are you so member when you are eating who you are, and whom you feed? When you are in the company of women, when you are conversing, when you are exercising, when you are disputing, do not you know that it is a god you feed, a god you exercise? YOU CARRY A GOD ABOUT WITH YOU, WRETCH, AND KNOW NOTHING OF IT."

"But that's religious stuff," you say. "And I'm not interested in religion."

Epictetus wasn't interested in religion, either, in the sense you mean. He was an old pagan—it is doubtful if he ever heard of Christ. But he had heard of life—he had felt Life tingling through his flesh, flooding through his spirit. He felt an immense respect and reverence for life—a craving for its beauty and adventure. AND BECAUSE HE RESPECTED LIFE HE RESPECTED HIMSELF WHO WAS PART OF LIFE.

If you're inflicted with an inferiority complex, there's the rope which you must grasp to drag yourself out of your dark pit. If you can't feel superior about anything else, feel superior because you're alive. If you can't, as yet, find an adventure in anything else, find adventure in your own existence. Observe the beauty and power and mystery of the life that is in you. REALIZE YOU CARRY A GOD! When you once realize that—others will realize it, too. Respect yourself—and others will respect you. That is the secret of human power.

CRADLE OF MAN

By Garrett P. Serviss

THE idea that the earliest traditions of human history are mere stories invented to amuse their hearers gives too much credit to the mental powers of ancient peoples. Even today no man can invent a story without basing it upon realities. The imagination is powerless without facts. Invention is harder than science. The most logical view is that historic traditions and mythological legends are basically true to reality, though distorted by variations and additions later made by the instructed imagination.

This is warranted by the results of modern research, which have everywhere corroborated — sometimes in the most surprising ways —the traditional lore handed down from time immemorial.

Take the story of the Garden of Eden and the creation of the parents of the human race. More and more it becomes evident that there was a core of fact around which that legend grew up—a solid seed for the pearl. Adam and Eve were personifications wrought out by the imagination working upon unrecorded but not unforgotten facts.

There may have been a real Adam, truly our first parent, though he may have been, in person, no more than the earliest individual whose biological characters crossed the Rubicon between the unmistakable brute and the indubitable man. The beast ancestor stood on one side, Adam, the man, on the other. Only divinity knew the difference between them. But all the potentialities of future development were packed into the living cell to which was given the honor of originating a new type of life upon the earth.

The book of Genesis itself shows that its writers were aware that there were manlike creatures on the earth before Adam. Science now seems to have discovered the place of origin of those pre-Adamites. It is believed to have existed in what is now the Gobi Desert, in the dry, deserted heart of ancient Mongolia, the center of the vast continent of Asia. There, say Roy Chapman Andrews and Henry W. Osborne and many other authorities in orchaeology, was the cradle of man. But apparently he was not yet truly a human being when he scrambled into the living world on that plateau, far from the ocean that was to make him a world conqueror.

Passages Bible

"Thy Keeper"

(Psalm 121)

I WILL lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help.

My help cometh from the Lord, which made heaven and earth.

He will not suffer thy foot to be moved: he that keepeth thee will not slumber.

Behold, he that keepeth Israel shall neither slumber nor sleep.

The Lord is thy keeper: the Lord is thy shade upon thy right hand.

The sun shall not smite thee by day, nor the moon by night.

The Lord shall preserve thee from all evil: he shall preserve thy soul.

The Lord shall preserve thy going out and thy coming in from this time forth, and even for evermore.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Whence This Whisper?

THOUGH never a light shines out from the dark,
And no sound through the silence rings
To guide on that sea where all men embark
On their voyage from Finite Things,
There is courage still in the soul outbound:
For if Earth and its joys were all,
What would feed the fires of this hope profound—
Of this vision that holds men in thrall?

If Earth and its loveliness, born to fade,
And its handful of joys, soon spent,
Were the end of all for which man is made,
Whence this whisper of sure content?
Whence this deep, calm trust in a coming dawn
That will glow with the heart's desire,
With all sorrow and weakness past and gone,
And the freed soul winging higher?

Humbug Bites

By Herbert Kaufman

FRAUD dearly loves a shining mark—which reminds us that Gen. von Ludendorf, the Kaiser's chief of staff, has just been gold-bricked.

But more distinguished dupes than he have been stung by humbugs.

Many a king also believed lead could be changed to good Louis d'Or and rose nobles, maintained private alchemists, and squandered fortunes on the experiments of those be-whiskered old fakes.

Even the Medicis backed a few expeditions into Cockaigne.

The higher they come, the harder they seem to fall for the rainbow peddlers.

Andrew Carnegie, who didn't believe in the alchemy that turns water into dividends and wouldn't take Steel common for a gift, instead bought Cassie Chadwick's patter at par, and contributed a scalp to that glib swindler's notable collection of hunting trophies.

Madame Humbert obtained one loan after another, from the premier bankers of France, by simply putting up a weird imagination for collateral.

Keely, with his perpetual motion machine, gulled the hardest-headed citizens of the nineties and lived in clover on their credulity.

De Rougemont hoodwinked geographical societies and the press of England with fantastic accounts of explorations through Neverwasland.

The Colonel and Judy O'Grady's husband are brother suckers in the hands of a skin specialist.

Victims of Francis Truth, who long prescribed "magic" handkerchiefs for every ailment from cataracts to catarrh, included editors, senators, and merchant princes.

The notorious Mr. Parker might still be furnishing his "guaranteed" Hindu Lucky Charms to legal lights and Wall Street sharps if postoffice inspectors hadn't discovered they were manufactured in Lynn, Mass.

The wire-tappers' favorite prey is a small-town wiseacre, and preferably a note-shaver.

It's an unusual year when Brooklyn Bridge isn't sold to some shrewd investor for $5 or upwards, and Chicago's Masonic Temple has repeatedly been purchased from putative owners for "what have you?"

Dubious mining and oil securities pop up in incredible quantities from the strong-boxes of money-masters. Even an inventory of J. P. Morgan's estate disclosed a scattering of such dream shares.

A hundred million profit in "wild-cats" is annually taken from the trap-lines of confidence gangs.

Short cuts to wealth are habitually the straightest roads to poverty.

When a philanthropic stranger generously offers you more than money's worth, it's reasonably safe to yell "police."

O. O. McINTYRE

MONTE CARLO, Feb. 11.—Morning on the sun-dappled Terrace of Monte Carlo with the trembling tinted blue of the Mediterranean in the offing has giddy headiness of a before breakfast cocktail. The French express the idea with their "Oo, la, la!" The most sedate turn pagan to whoop and dance over life.

The mood is playful; indeed kittenish. Sitting at an outdoor table this morning a voice behind me cried: "Hands up!" After making a sheepish movement with my hands, which quickly changed to a fevered smoothing of my hair, I turned to see a dignified gentleman who was a fellow passenger crossing from America.

He was not only aloof aboard ship, but in the compartment we occupied on the way to Paris. Yet at Monte Carlo he had become a jocose backslapper, calling me by name and inviting me to join him in a snifter. I merely uncorked my nastiest frown and let him have it clear up to here. I prefer a high hat to a back slap anyway.

This same climatic and scenic wallop offsets the depression of heavy losses at the gaming table here. People lose staggering sums and still feel exhilerated. But Monte Carlo's glitter reminds me of the phosphorescent glow of a beautiful and rotting fish. The veins of Monaco run cold with ice water.

Dotting various tables were Elsie Janis and her mother, Alistair Mackintosh; Mabelle Corey Gilman, Fritz Kreisler and, of course, that ever present delineator of international intrigue, E. Phillips Oppenheim, the novelist. It is the straggly season on the French Riviera, but colorful just the same.

At luncheon I met Monsieur Chiappe, the energetic and spectacular Prefect of Police of Paris—incognito for a day's relief from crook hunting. He is a Corsican, an idealist and a determined protector of middle classes. Just now he is warring on peep show guides and gigolos of Paris. He suggests the cricket.

Monte Carlo continues to wax expensive. There is a Palm Beach tilt to cafe and hotel tariffs. Various cocktails have advanced one franc, 50 over last year. The head porter at the Hotel de Paris explained it frankly with: "We want to make it impossible for all save the very rich." And I didn't care for the sharp look he gave me and my dog.

An American lady stepped from a motor at her Monte Carlo hotel this afternoon in semi hysterics. She had been driving along the famous Corniche road and alighted for a closer view of a peaceful little lake a short distance away. Accompanying her was a faithful and valuable Scotch terrier. She tossed a stick into the water for the dog to retrieve and was horrified to see a swan glide up, clutch the animal in its talons and hold it under water until it drowned. She learned from a game keeper this was the fate of almost every dog that approached swans in water. Add permanent dislikes—swans.

Monte Carlo's dream of gold is an invincible distraction, but there are other pleasant diversions. Such as fishing, trap shooting, horseback riding, motoring, tennis, golf and listening to those people at adjoining tables who try to create a worldliness for your benefit. The ordinary fibber becomes a grandiose liar at Monte Carlo. I have spoken twice carelessly of an imaginary yacht. But 99 per cent of the visitors come here solely to—business of coining an original phrase—woo the goddess of chance. They seem to be straining, like hounds on leashes, until the casinos are thrown open for the day.

There is nothing, despite his suave and imperturable manner, quite so pathetic to me as a gambling casino croupier. His employers make distrust of him so humiliatingly obvious. Every pocket in his evening clothes is tightly sewed up with thread that is plainly discernable. After he finishes for the day, he must strip and walk through an alley of inspectors to reach his going home attire. He has no chance to steal and is paid a miserable wage. But he does see life!

Monte Carlo is stimulating and one is clutched by its beauty for a day, but unless one is thrilled by gambling it seems long enough. It is no place for a boob. Interwoven in its great splendor are sordid splotches of ugliness and despairing misery. Last night, for instance, all Monte Carlo knows there were two attempts—one successful— at suicide over gaming losses. But the rest of the world will never know it. And one cannot forget those ancient crones with claw-like fingers who sit at small play tables, gulping fiery brandy to sustain their courage. What a terrible old age!

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

HAVE you abandoned some of your friends because they seem too commonplace to fit into your present position?

They do not dress well enough, do not have the style or equipment in their homes that your newly found friends possess.

You feel you have progressed and they would be drawbacks to your present desires and ambitions.

Yet you are no better than you were when these persons were welcomed by you as your friends.

You have advanced financially, not otherwise.

Are you willing to admit that you are so shallow as to judge your friendship by monetary standards?

If you measure thus with your friends of former days, do not your new friends look upon you from the same basis?

Can you be pleased and satisfied with a friendship which takes into account the size of your bank account or your holdings in stocks and bonds?

Does that sort of friendship warm your soul?

It is not really worthwhile, and you are getting the disturbing thought that should you lose your money or your position your present friends would have little use for you.
